OFFICIAL REPORT.

That of Chris Evans Who Was Sent to Investigate Killing of Colored Miners.

HIS ACCOUNT OF THE AFFAIR

Great Feeling Against Deputy Marshal Cunningham Who is Blamed for Much Which Occurred.

HE IS INDICTED BY THE GRAND JURY

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., March 9.—The official report of Chris Evans, who was sent to the West Virginia coal fields to investigate the killing of the colored miners at Atkinsville, has been received at the headquarters of the United Mine Workers.

The report says that General St. Clair, the attorney for the coal companies, created an agitation to have the men arrested and taken to Charleston and that immediately afterward arrangements were made with the United States marshal by the miner's officials to give bond for all who were arrested, but that later, on account of the agitation created by Deputy Marshal Cunningham the agreement with the marshal was broken and Cunningham was sent to arrest the men.

According to the report, there was great feeling against Cunningham and the men decided not to allow him to arrest them and he was driven away. Mr. Evans says that he sent a telegram to the men to submit quietly, but that the coal companies who own all the telegraph and telephone lines into the town, refused to deliver it, and before he could get any message to the men, Cunningham and his deputies, who, he says, were the worst characters he could collect, went to the town a second time and killed the miners in their beds at night.

Mr. Evans says that he went to the scene of the trouble the next morning and that forty-eight men had been arrested for conspiracy to kill Cunningham, He found in a house occupied by a colored man, called "Stonewall Jackson," the dead bodies of William Dodson, William Clark and Richard Clayton, all negroes.

The report continues :

"We found that the wife of Jackson and her four children, with eight negroes, were in the house, that about daybreak all were awakened by shots fired into the house from the outside. This shooting took place without warning and the three colored men were found dead on the floor. Two were in their night clothes and the other one was partly dressed. We visited another house where Joseph Hizer lay in bed mortally wounded, having been shot while he was dressing. Hizer lived with his sister and she made the statement at the inquest that she pleaded with those shooting not to kill her children and in reply Cunningham said: 'Women and children must take care of themselves.' In no instance could we find where these people had been asked to surrender, until after the deputies had commenced shooting at the occupants of the house.

We next went to the house of Lucien Lawson, who was considered mortally wounded. I understand that after the shooting referred to, this man, with others, returned the fire of the posse, and this is the only instance where an attempt at resistance was made by the miners. During the shooting, in many instances the men and women pleaded with the men outside to have mercy on them, but their cries were answered with derision and curses. Our investigation proves conclusively that no effort was made to shoot or resist, except in the one case mentioned, but that all would have been glad to surrender if they had been allowed the opportunity.'

Mr. Evans says that the coroner's jury has returned a verdict of felonious killing against Cunningham for the killing of William Dodson.

Stover—Wright.

On Wednesday evening at the Lutheran parsonage at Pine Grove Mills, Ralph W. E. Stover and Miss Sarah B. Wright were united in marriage by the Rev. C. T. Aikens.

The groom is a son of the late David Stover, deceased, of Pine Hall, while the bride is a daughter of Charles Wright, of Stormstown, where she is held in the highest esteem of her acquaintances.

The young couple will make their home near Pine Grove Mills and this paper joins with their many friends in wishing them prosperity and happiness through life.

FIRE AT SPRING MILLS.

Property Valued at $7,500 Destroyed Sunday Night.

Sunday night a very serious fire occurred at Spring Mills, this county, as a result of which $7,500 worth of valuable property was destroyed. The fire broke out about 11:30 o'clock in the general store of C. J. Finkel. The flames spread with great rapidity and before they were subdued the store and dwelling of C. J. Finkel, located in the same building, and the building owned and occupied by C. A. Krape as a post-office and shoe store were burned to the ground. The fire also spread to the dwelling house owned by William Allison and occupied by John Brown and H. F. Rossman, and it was with great difficulty that this building was saved.

The entire contents of Finkel's store were burned. The greater part of his household goods were saved. C. A. Krape succeeded in removing to a place of safety the post-office fixtures, stamps, etc., and his entire stock of shoes.

The fire, it is believed, was of incendiary origin. It is only two months since H. F. Rossman's store, located just across the street from where this fire occurred, was destroyed in a similar manner.

C. J. Finkel's loss is estimated at $6,500, with $3,500 insurance on stock, $1,000 on building. and $500 on household goods.

C. A. Krape's loss on building will be about $750, with $400 insurance.

The Allison dwelling is damaged to the extent of several hundred dollars which is covered by insurance.

An Exciting Runaway at State College.

State College was thrown into a state of excitement Thursday morning caused by a runaway horse, which badly hurt J. B. Shuman.

The horse belonged to I C. Holmes and is used in his delivery wagon driven by Russel Pearce. Russel had gone to the station for some freight which was in a car. As the car door was shoved open the horse became frightened and started down the street at a terrific speed. In turning the corner at the College hotel the wagon struck Mr. Shuman, who was crossing the street, throwing him some distance. Mr. Shuman was picked up in a semi-conscious condition and taken into the house and was found to be badly cut about the side of the head, besides being more or less bruised about the body.

The noise of the dashing horse and wagon freightened a team belonging to David Miller, a farmer, living at Pine Hall, that was standing in front of Holmes & Co's store. These horses also started on a run but were captured on Church street before any damage was done.

Mr. Holmes' horse took the side walk for some distance causing pedestrians to to flee for their lives and leaving fragments of the wagan in its course. After freeing itself from the wagon the horse ran into the livery barn where it was captured. The wagan was literally demolished, but the horse got through with only a few scratches.

Bold Burglar at Winburne Attempts to Get Several Thousand Dollars.

A bold attempt was made Wednesday to rob the American express office at Winburne, of a large sum of money which had been received for the use of a coal company in paying its miners. The thief evidently had accurate information as to the time the shipment would be received, for shortly after it was received and while the agent was at dinner he broke into the office, only to find the safe unlocked and empty. To compensate himself for his trouble the burglar broke open the ticket office drawer and abstracted $12.50. When the thief was discovered officers were put on the case and the thief quickly rounded up, All but fifty cents of the booty was recovered. The jimmy man was landed in the Clearfield jail. The agent had safe-guarded the treasure, which amounted to several thousand dollars by carrying it with him when he left his office.

Flew the Coop.

A young man by the name of James Reed was arrested and placed in the Lock up on Saturday night for disorderly conduct. After the officer had left he proceeded to extricate himself from his environment, he tore up the bunk and using it for a battering ram soon had the door reduced to match wood. He also broke the window and by the time he was through there was but little of the coop left.

We understand the Burgess is looking for him, but opine he is not eager to have him, as there is no place in this community strong enough to hold him. If he only leaves town and does not come back every one will be satisfied.

AWFUL EXPLOSION!

OCCURRED NEAR OLEAN, N. Y.

Freight Train on the Erie Broke in Two and the Sections Came Together.

THEN CAME THE CONFLAGRATION

OLEAN, N. Y., March 10.—A score or more people were killed and a larger number were injured by an explosion of oil near here Monday. A freight train on the Erie, made up principally of tank cars filled with oil, broke in two near this city at about 9 o'clock. The two sections of the train came together with a crash and one of the oil tanks was demolished. Fire broke out almost instantly and the sky was lighted up for miles. A large crowd of people left this city for the scene of the fire.

While they were lined up along the tracks a terrific explosion occurred. The flames communicated quickly with the other tank cars and a second and third explosion followed each other in rapid succession. Sheets of flames shot out in all directions. Scores of people were caught within the zone of the fire and enveloped in the flames. Men and boys ran screaming down the tracks with their clothing a mass of flames. Others fell where they stood, overcome by the awful heat. Just how many were killed is not known, as many of the bodies were incinerated.

Sidney Fish, a prominent business man, returned from the scene of the fire at midnight. He said :

"I was attracted to the scene of the fire between 9.30 and 10 o'clock. When I was within a quarter of a mile of the wrecked train there was a terrific explosion. I saw several persons who started to run away drop on the railroad tracks and they never moved again. Other who had been standing close to the wreckage were hurled through the air for hundreds of feet. They resembled human torches. I could hear their agonized screams distinctly from where I stood. They ran some distance down the track and then threw themselves to the ground, groveling in the ditches in their frantic efforts to extinguish the flames. Then they lay still, some of them unconscious, others dead. I don't know how many were killed but I counted twenty bodies before I came away."

Olean, N. Y., March 10, -A report from the scene of the accident at 1 o'clock Tuesday says that twenty two bodies have been taken from the wreckage. Some of them were burned beyond recognition, only the trunks and skulls remaning.

Shingletown Wedding.

A very pretty wedding was solemnized Wednesday at the home of Adam Felty at Shingletown when his daughter, Miss Harriet R. Felty, became the wife of Mr. Harry Shugerts. The wedding took place at high noon in the presence of the immediate friends of the two families and was performed by Rev. Stonecypher of the Boalsburg church.

Mr. Shugerts formerly lived in Stone Valley but for the past two years he has been employed by Mr. Felty as head farmer. It was during this time that cupid shot the dart which pierced the hearts of these two young people.

The bride is favorably known and has a large circle of acquaintances in this vicinity.

We extend our hand to congratulate these young people and wish their lives may be crowned with happiness and success.

Murderer Meyers Still at Liberty.

The man arrested at Snow Shoe last Friday who was supposed to be Edward Meyers, the murderer of Mrs. Payne, of Tioga county, was taken to Wellsboro Saturday morning where he was carefully examined by the officers. While he in many respects resembles Meyers, yet it turns out he is not the murderer.

This man gives his name as Frank Henry and was on his way to Reading to visit a sister when he was arrested at Snow Shoe.

In Remembrance of Dr. Pugh.

We have received a very handsome copy of the biographical sketch of Evan Pugh, Ph. D., F. C. S., first President of the Pennsylvania Agricultural College. This sketch of Doctor Pugh's life has been prepared and published in "Contemporary American Biography, Vol. 3." by the students and representatives of Classes 1859, '60, '61, '62, '63, at their own expense, but in grateful remembrance of those, who half a century ago, sat at the feet of this modern Gamaliel.

In 1859 Dr. Pugh was elected President of the Agricultural College in Pennsylvania, and died April 29th, 1864, in the 36th year of his age. On February 4th, 1864, he was married at Bellefonte, to Miss Rebecca Valentine, who is still a resident of our town.

Dr. Pugh was a man of brilliant mental attainments and made many valuable contributions to science. As to his personal character we quote from the matter contained in the sketch : "He was distinguished in a remarkable degree for the most high-toned purity and rectitude in thought, word and deed. His spirit in this respect was like a clear light which shone ever undimmed and constant, and which put to shame in others, every thought or feeling less pure and less right than his own. In him strength and gentleness were wonderfully blended ; and to this was added a full constancy to those friends on whom he once bestowed his regard."

Grow Will Write a Book.

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 6—Ex-Congressman Galusha A. Grow will write a book of his reminiscences of public men in and out of Congress, entitled, "Grow's Half-Century in Congress."

$1,000,000 for Princeton.

New York, March 5.—The Evening Journal says Andrew Carnegie has given Princeton University $1,000,000 for the construction of a graduate school. The gift is made in payment of a debt of gratitude Mr. Carnegie felt that he owed his physician. Dr. Joseph J. Garmany, who attended him during his recent illness in Europe. Dr. Garmany declined to accept a personal gift but suggested that something be offered Princeton, from which Dr. Garmany was graduated in 1879.

PRESSING NEEDS DEMAND IT

Pittsburg Division to Be Four-Tracked and Road to Be Built from Mountain Summit Down the Juniata Valley.

SIX ROADS HAVE BEEN ABSORBED

PHILADELPHIA, March 11.—The stockholders of the Pennsylvania Railroad company in annual meeting Tuesday voted to increase the capital stock of the company by $150,000,000, making the total authorized capital $400,000,000. Of the increased capital $100,000,000 will be issued in straight stock and the directors are given the option of issuing the remaining $50,000,000 in convertable bonds. The increase will be ratified by a stock vote two weeks from Tuesday, as required by law.

The stockholders also voted to lease for a period of twenty years the Western New York and Pennsylvania railroad.

After the annual report had been adopted and other routine business transacted. First Vice-President Green addressed the stockholders on the resolution authorizing the increase in the capital. He said that for the first time in its history the Pennsylvania Railroad company is unable to meet the demands made upon it. Vast improvements have been made and are contemplated in order to furnish facilities for handling the rapidly increasing business. In the past two years Captain Green said the company had purchased one locomotive daily and a total of 40,000 freight cars.

In Pittsburg alone an expenditure of $10,000,000 will be necessary to relieve the freight congestion and prevent its recurrence The entire Pittsburg division is to be four-tracked, Captain Green stated, and, continuing, said:

"We must build a new road from the summit of the mountain down the Juniata valley and a new road practically from Harrisburg to Philadelphia. Our coal traffic is so enormous that it must be kept out of the way of the passenger traffic. What we propose to do ought to be done promptly."

The new issue of stocks and bonds will be made by the directors at their meeting March 24, when the annual election takes place.

Six roads controlled by the Pennsylvania railroad, but built under a seperate charter, were on a resolution absorbed. They are the South Fork, West Chester, River Front, Western Pennsylvania, Turtle Creek Valley and Downingtown Lancaster railroad.

The happy affair occurred at the home of the brides parents, which was beautifully arranged for the occasion with choice flowers and palms. It was a very quiet affair, only the immediate friends of the happy young couple being present. Promptly at twelve o'clock the bridal party appeared before Rev. Irvin Stonecypher who performed the ceremony that made them man and wife. A sumptuous wedding breakfast was then served.

Miss Meyers wore a beautiful gown of gray crepe de chine trimmed in valenciennes lace. She is the accomplished daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel W. Meyers highly respected citizens in that vicinity.

The United States Senate is now in special session.

All-night sessions are not conducive to good temper.

The last shot of the Illinois Cannon blew out the breech.

There has not been a case of sun stroke reported during the last week.

Just now Senators regard it a hardship that they get no pay for working over-time.

When Senator Smoot was sworn in there was loud applause from the "ladies' gallery."

Tennessee made a net profit on the labor of her convicts during the past two years of $284,281.46.

Senator Morgan once talked an hour and a half on a jack-knife. This augurs badly for the Panama Treaty.

Too bad the President could not have called only Senator Morgan in extra session. It would have been cheaper.

Out of 17,560 bills introduced during the recent session of Congress, 3,918 were reported and slightly over 3,000 passed.

The South Carolina Legislature has just defeated a bill to kill worthless dogs. Worthless curs must be powerful lobbyists.

New York policemen are required to put on a clean collar every day. They must pay their "finest" big wages to warrant this luxury.

Some people will take great unction to their souls because they deny themselves the pleasure of reading the Congressional Record in Lent.

After long delay Mr. J. P. Morgan is building a $300,000 house for his own use. Can he have been waiting for Mr. Carnegie to donate him one?

People who have been worrying about the price of coal will not find consolation in the fact that violets are only fifty cents a bunch in the cities.

Governor Pennypacker is keeping both eyes on the appropriations passed by the Legislature and will lop off any that he does not consider proper.

Princeton University needs $12,000,000 to carry out proposed extension plans. When that amount has been raised we will inform our readers.

The surplus of cash in the State Treasury will soon begin to diminish if all the appropriation bills should be signed by Governor Pennypacker.

It would have saved us time and money if we had taken Cuba into the Union at the close of the war. She is more bother to us than the Philippines.

Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt says she has in her pocket evidence which would send 10,000 New Hampshire men to jail. But no one ever finds a woman's pocket.

Judge Parker, of New York, is mentioned as a possible Democratic candidate for President. What we want to know, who is Judge Parker, what is he, and why is he?

The bar in the capitol at Washington will be closed. This is a great victory for the temperance people and will have the effect of shortening the sessions of Congress.

The Legislature still has 750 bills to take action upon before April 16th, the date of adjournment. Fifty of these bills should be passed, the other 700 ought to be consigned to oblivion.

W. J. Bryan is yelping around the country in order that the Democrats may not forget that the great and only 16 to 1 apostle is still on deck and willing to lead the "forlorn hope" once more to victory (?).

The Curwensville Review of last Saturday published a fairy story to the effect that Senator Patton had introduced a bill in the Senate to authorize the formation of a new county out of parts of Clearfield, Cambria and Jefferson. This is all bosh, as the Senator is devoting his time to weightier matters, and those that are of more benefit to his constituents than making new counties.

It will now be the proper thing to have the stork visit our homes as often as possible. The State, in order to encourage the raising of large families, will give medals and pay cash for each child born into a family over a certain number. For instance, from $10 to $30 will be paid to mothers of from six to fifteen children. Medals of proportionate value will also be given. It is thought by this method our population will rapidly increase. We are in sympathy with the law, for we believe in encouraging all "infant industries."

CONGRESS ADJOURNS!

Partisanship Continued to Run High Until End.

THE DEMOCRATS BEATEN OUT

SENATOR MASON KILLED A BILL.

WASHINGTON, March 5.—The Fifty-seventh Congress expired at noon yesterday by limitation. In many respects the closing scenes were similar to those at the end of every Congress. Every four years, however, there is an inauguration which materially changes the proceedings in the Senate, but the expiration of a Congress in the House is very much the same each time.

But there has not been in many years such a demonstration in the House as occurred yesterday, owing to the fact that Speaker Henderson was retiring not only as presiding officer, but from the House as a member. The bitter partisan feeling that has sprung up in the House of Representatives during the past week, reached a pitch which prevented the Speaker from receiving the unanimous approval of the House when the usual resolution of thanks and courtesy was offered.

More than this, the resolution had to come from the Republican side and while this has occurred before, it is not the usual custom.

The usual resolution of thanks to President pro tem Frye was unanimously adopted in the Senate.

Two years ago when the Fifty-sixth Congress expired it was remarkable not only for the second inauguration of William McKinley, but also for the fact that Senator Carter, of Montana, talked the River and Harbor bill to death, which occupied the time of the Senate up to within a few minutes of the end. Yesterday Senator Mason, whose term expired at noon, also talked an unimportant bill to death, but in his valedictory he lectured the Senate for its unlimited debate which allows bills to be killed in that manner, and he also made a final plea for the freedom of the Filipinos.

As all of the important supply bills had passed before the two Houses took a recess yesterday morning, no legislation was necessary and none was attempted.

The bills which had passed and reached the stage of enrollment were all signed by President Roosevelt, who, with members of his cabinet, occupied the President's room in the Senate wing of the capitol. This bi-ennial visit of the President to the Capitol is one of the features of a closing campaign.

Gen. Grant's House Sold.

The house owned and occupied by the late Mrs. U. S. Grant in Washington has been sold to General John A. Johnson, U. S. army, retired. The price paid for the house was $60,000, about $20,000 in advance of the price paid by Mrs. Grant.

The house immediately adjoins on the east the new white marble stucture shortly to be occupied by the French Embassy. On the west Mrs. Richard Townsend's property adjoins it, extending to the end of the block, and immediately across the street is the Patten residence. General Johnson is but recently retired, and has become the owner of the Grant residence, with the idea of making his permanent home therein.

—The appropriations committee of the State Senate visited State College Thursday afternoon to make a tour of inspection of that institution. They arrived here at 1:05 and were taken to the College on a special over the Bellefonte Central. They return to Bellefonte last evening.

Is it Our "Brack."?

William Powell, colored, is a prisoner in the county jail. He was arrested at the instance of Sarah Miller, and some days ago Powell stated that rather than remain in jail he would marry Sarah. That was satisfactory to her, but William had to have his attorney telephone to Bellefonte for the money necessary to tie the knot and pay the costs. While waiting for the cash to arrive, a couple of other colored women called on William, and after that he was not so anxious to marry Sarah. Whether or not he had been persuaded to remain single, has not been made clear. Yesterday Sarah called at the jail and during the conversation that followed William again intimated that he would marry her, and the prospects for a wedding seemed quite bright, but thus far the nuptial knot has not been tied.—Williamsport Sun.

THE ART.STS BANQUET.

Master Painters and Paper Hangers Banquet Wednesday Evening.

Wednesday evening the cozy parlors of Mr. Charles Hazel's on Bishop street was the scene of a very pretty occasion. It meant that the Master Painters and Paper Hangers Union were celebrating, by having a grand banquet.

It was near nine o'clock when the Union and their guests, twenty seven in all, sat down to a sumptuous repast. It would be very fitting right here to say, that Mr. Hazel and his excellent wife deserve great credit for the manner and style in which they handled this happy affair, for nothing was lacking to make the supper a complete success. The tables were handsomely arranged and decorated and presented a beautiful sight. After all had eaten heartily of the choice viands set before them, Robert Irwin arose and in a neat speech introduced for the toast master of the evening one who, with the exception of two or three, all had learned their trades with, and who was held in the highest esteem by every man in the Union, and that was Captain Samuel H. Williams.

In taking his position as toast master Mr. Williams congratulated the men for forming themselves into a Union, for in doing so, their work is better all around and he hoped they would always stick together. Frank Deitrick the President of the Union, told the object and workings of the order and said the organization was only a year old and had a membership of thirty. The next speaker was our friend George R. Meek, who kept the fellows in a jolly humor. Francis Speer then entered and was much surprised when he saw all had finished eating, but he wanted to kill two birds with one stone, he wanted to attend the show and the banquet and missed the best part of both, but Francis made a fine speech, if he did'nt get anything to eat. He was followed by Charles Gates, Edward Eckenroth, Robert Montgomery, Robert Irwin, James Houser, John Chauncy Depew McSuley, George Weaver, John Houser and Harry Deihl. The happy affair ended about midnight and all went home, feeling that it was good for them to be there. The committee in charge, were Messrs. John Houser, Harry Stevenson and George Weaver.

President Gets a Solid Gold Invitation.

WASHINGTON, March 6.—A solid gold invitation was presented to President Roosevelt yesterday to attend the Black Hills mining congress, which is to be held at Deadwood and Leadville, S. D., next September. Senators Gamble and Kittridge and Representatives Burke and Martin made the presentation. The invitation was inscribed on a solid gold plate, three inches by six inches and an eighth of an inch in thickness.

President Roosevelt expressed his pleasure at the receipt of so beautiful an invitation and at the honor done him by the mining congress, but thought it doubtful whether he would be able to accept it.

"The Garden of Lies" in The Philadelphia Press.

The romance of a beautiful American girl, in which the fight for a throne figures prominently, is the basis of "The Garden of Lies." The most fascinating love story since the "Prisoner of Zenda." From start to finish the tale teems with adventure and excitement. The plot is novel and well handled and there is not a dull line in it. Though it is a story of valor, it is first of all a love story that will strike a sympathetic chord in every reader. Be sure to read this striking romance in next Sunday's "Philadelphia Press." Heirs of an Indian Recover Valuable Lands From Packers.

A jury at Kansas City Mo., in the case of Annie B. Wood and other heirs of Silas Armstrong, an Indian, to recover Missouri river bottom land in Kansas City, Mo., valued at $1,000,000, and occupied by Armour & Fowler, the packers, and others, has returned a verdict in favor of the plaintiffs.

The attorneys for the defence have filed notices of appeal. If the decision of the lower Court shall be sustained the Armour Packing Companies will probably be the heaviest loser. The portion of the tract claimed by Armour is valued at nearly $100.000

TILLMAN TAKES CANNON TO TASK

WASHINGTON, March 6.—In obedience to the president's proclamation, the senate of the Fifty-eighth congress convened in extraordinary session at noon Thursday An immense crowd witnessed the interesting ceremony. Echoes of the Fifty-seventh congress had not died away when President Pro Tem Frye called the body to order and soon thereafter the senators who were re-elected and those who were to take their seats for the first time, with the exception of Mr. Gorman, who had seen long service in the senate, were sworn in. Friends and admirers of the senators loaded down their desks with beautiful floral tributes. One of the features of the opening ceremony was the ovation accorded Mr. Gorman.

Mr. Cannon's speech in the house of representatives early Wednesday morning in presenting the conference report on the general deficiency bill, in which he charged that the senate conferees had resorted to executive blackmail and attacked the rules of the senate, formed the subject of some fervid remarks by Mr. Tillman, and by the senate conferees, Messrs. Hale, Allison and Teller.

The senate, at 3.15 p. m., adjourned until Monday.

The business of the executive sessions consisted in referring all the treaties before the senate to the committee on foreign relations and in referring the nominations sent in Thursday to the committee which will pass on them. The committee on foreign relations will meet Saturday for the purpose of considering the treaties and Senator Cullom, the chairman, expresses confidence that the committee will be able to report all of them back after one sitting.

The oath of office was administered to thirty senators, twelve of whom Thursday began their first term as senators.

Mr. Tillman, of South Carolina, holding in his hand a copy of the congressional Record, rose to a question of personal privilege. He was proceeding to say that in the Record Wednesday there was a very remarkable speech, when Mr. Pettus, of Alabama, suggested that it was the custom of the senate and a rule of courtesy to transact no business until the special committee had returned from its visit to the president. The chair agreed with him. Thereupon Mr. Tillman at 12.40 p. m. moved a recess for half an hour which motion prevailed.

It was supposed that Mr. Tillman alluded to the speech made by Mr. Cannon about the South Carolina claim in the deficiency bill which caused something of a sensation in the house early Wednesday morning.

Mr. Hoar and Mr. Cockrell, the special committee appointed to wait upon the president, reported that they had performed this duty and that the president had stated he would at onced make a communication in writing.

Mr. Tillman, referring again to the speech he had characterized as "remarkable," said he did not know that there ever had been a similar one delivered in either branch of congress. He then quoted from Mr. Cannon's speech in the house early Wednesday morning in which he gave the reasons for the house conferees receding from their position with respect to the claim of South Carolina for $47,000, growing out of the war of 1812-1815.

The message from the president giving his reason for calling the senate in extra session was read:

It was as follows:

"To the Senate—I have called the senate in extraordinary session to consider the treaties concerning which it proved impossible to take action during the session of congress just ended. I ask your special attention to the treaty with the republic of Colombia, securing to the United States the right to build an isthmian canal and to the treaty with the republic of Cuba for securing a measure of commercial reciprocity between the two countries.

"The great and far reaching importance of these two treaties to the welfare of the United States, and the urgent need for their adoption requires me to impose upon you the inconvenience of meeting at this time.

[Signed] "THEODORE ROOSEVELT."

DANGERS OF PNEUMONIA.

A cold at this time if neglected is liable to cause pneumonia which is so often fatal, and even when the patient has recovered the lungs are weakened, making them peculiar susceptible to the development of consumption. Foley's Honey and Tar will stop the cough, heal and strengthen the lungs and prevent pneumonia,

THE BOW IN WAR.

How It Was Made and Used by the Asiatic Tribesmen.

The bow as used by Asiatic horsemen assumes a curious shape. They were made of horn, generally buffalo horn, in two pieces, joined by a wooden center, and when unstrung had the form of a capital C, which enabled them to be hung over the arm on horseback. When strung, a difficult feat to those unused to them, they took the double curve of the antique bow as seen in the representation of Cupid. This was the "Tartar's bow," used by the Scythians, Parthians and Persians and up to quite recent times in India. It was drawn by the thumb alone, on which the archer wore a broad, thick ring of horn, ivory or cornelian, on whose edge the bowstring rested.

The long bow was also much in use among Indian infantry of the middle ages, but neither they nor any other Asiatics appear to have done such execution as the English archers of the same period. Bernier says, describing a battle between Aurangzeb and his brother Dara: "They draw their arrows with a marvelous swiftness, one man being able to draw six of them before a musketeer can discharge twice; but, to say truth, their arrows do but little execution. More of them are lost in the air or broken on the ground than hit."

The bow, in fact, requires more than any other weapon constant practice from childhood, and strong Englishmen of the present day are quite unable to use the bows of the half human Mincopies of the Andamans.—Chambers' Journal.

How the Springboks Travel.

The springboks of South Africa migrate in vast herds, moving in a compact body and carrying everything before them. If a flock of sheep be in the line of march, as sometimes happens, it is surrounded, enveloped and becomes, willingly or unwillingly, part of the springbok army. An African hunter tells the strange story of seeing a lion in the midst of the antelopes, forced to join the march. It is supposed that the lion had sprung too far for his prey, that those upon whom he alighted recoiled sufficiently to allow him to reach the ground, and then the pressure from both flanks and the rear prevented him from escaping from his strange captivity.

If the springbok travels in such armies, how can those in the middle and in the rear find food? In this wise: Those in the front ranks, after they have eaten greedily of the pasture, gradually fall out of the ranks to rest and chew the cud, while the hungry ones in the rear come up, and so the columns are all the while changing.

The Fragrant Heliotrope.

You may give a heliotrope, and not a very large plant, as much water as you give a geranium and think you are giving all that is required. Your plant will fail to make a vigorous and healthy growth because it is not moist enough at the roots. Examine it, and you will find that the tiny roots have extracted the moisture almost wholly. If not given more water at once, some of the young and delicate roots are injured, and the plant takes on a diseased condition, from which it often never recovers. Do not get the idea that the soil in which heliotropes are grown ought to be kept wet. Not at all. But because it requires more moisture than many plants, because it extracts more rapidly from the soil, water should be given oftener to keep the soil in the proper condition.

The Final Straw.

A story is told of a rustic who, after imbibing too freely, fell asleep by the wayside.

The day was hot, and a swarm of flies settled on his face and proceeded to make his sleep anything but pleasant. In a little while a few mosquitoes came along to add their torture to that of the flies. Of course the man woke up after repeated attacks by the combined forces and vainly tried to brush them away. Finally along came a big wasp and stung him on the nose. "Now, for that you can all get off," he said.

The Discovery of the Fork.

Some believe that the fork was in use all over Europe as early as the year 500 A. D., but if they were their use and the fork itself were lost sight of up to about the beginning of the seventeenth century, when it was either discovered or rediscovered and popularized. Walton, Weems and other antiquarians hold to the earlier date, because a stone vessel containing coins of the middle ages and some iron forks was found at Sevington, England, in the year 1834.

Matting.

Nothing looks worse than grimy matting, and yet it is not difficult to keep it in good condition. First have it well shaken to remove all dust and then wash it with salt and water. It must not be made too wet, and dry well afterward with a cloth. If there are any stains, alcohol will remove them.

A REMARKABLE CASE.

One of the most remarkable cases of a cold, deep-seated on the lungs, causing pneumonia, is that of Mrs. Gertrude E. Fenner, Marion, Ind., who was entirely cured by the use of One Minute Cough cure. She says: "The coughing and straining so weakened me that I run down in weight from 148 to 92 pounds. I tried a number of remedies to no avail until I used One Minute Cough cure. Four bottle of this wonderful remedy cured me entirely of the cough, strengthened my lungs and restored me to my normal weight, health and strength."

Parrish's Drug Store.

IN OLD AGE the question of health becomes mainly a question of nutrition. If the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition are kept in a healthful condition there will be a well-nourished body, and little liability to disorders of the liver, bowels or such other disorders as may result from innutrition and lack of exercise.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery cures diseases of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition, and also diseases of other organs which are caused by the diseased condition of the stomach. By enabling the perfect nutrition of the body it increases the vital power and promotes a vigorous old age.

"I was a sufferer from chronic diarrhea for five years," writes Mrs. Mary A. Aaron, of Rolla, Phelps Co., Mo. "I tried different remedies, which would give me relief for a short time only. My trouble would return as bad as ever. I consulted you in July, 1900, and by your advice commenced using Dr. Pierce's remedies. I took two bottles of the 'Golden Medical Discovery,' three vials of the 'Pellets,' and some of the 'Extract of Smart-Weed,' as you advised. I have not had any return of my trouble since using your medicines. Am now seventy-one years old and I never had anything to relieve me so quick. I think Dr. Pierce's medicines the greatest on earth. Should I ever have any return of my trouble shall use your medicine. My thanks to you for your advice and thanks to Almighty God for restoring me to health through your hands."

Accept no substitute for "Golden Medical Discovery." There is nothing "just as good" for diseases of the stomach, blood and lungs.

ALL WRONG.

The Mistake is Made by Many Bellefonte Citizens.

Don't mistake the cause of backache.

To be cured you must know the cause.

It is wrong to imagine relief is cure.

Backache is kidney ache.

Mr. William Valence, East Lamb Street, night watchman, says:

"For 2 years or more off and on, I had trouble with my back and pains in the upper part of my spine accompanied by a disagreeable feeling in my head and acute lameness right over my kidneys. At first I thought it was my liver but later found it arose from the kidneys no acting properly. I read of the many cures that had been made in Bellefonte by Doan's Kidney Pills and I got them at F. Potts Green's drug store. They stopped the annoyance from the kidneys and removed the lameness and aching in my back. They did me any amount of good and I do not hesitate to recommend them."

WATERFALLS IN JAPAN.

They Are Almost Countless and Are Used as Shrines.

The waterfalls of Japan are almost countless. There is one at every turn, and where there was not one in the beginning the Japs have made one, for it is their passion. Every little garden has a fall or two, and it would not be considered a garden at all without it. There are many very beautiful ones in various parts of the country, and they are all of them shrines visited by thousands of pilgrims every year. They do not pray to them as to a statue of Buddha, but they first pass up a little paper prayer on a convenient rock and then sit down in rapt attention and gaze at the falling water for hours, taking an occasional cup of tea at a little teahouse which always stands close at hand.

The Japs are great at making pilgrimages anyway. When a man has reached the age of forty-five, he is supposed to have raised a family which will in the future take care of him. About the first thing he does on retiring is to start on a series of pilgrimages. Sometimes he joins a band of fellow pilgrims, or, if comparatively wealthy, he sometimes takes his wife and a minor child and makes the pilgrimages by himself. These pilgrim bands can always be seen moving about the country. They carry little banners with the name of their city and district marked on them, and when they have received good entertainment at a teahouse or hotel they hang one of their banners up in a conspicuous place as a testimonial. Often a band of pilgrims will travel from one end of the country to the other, visiting every temple and waterfall in the land.

Lavish Entertainments.

In the palmy days of the French monarchy sumptuous entertainments of royalty were not uncommon. To entertain a queen for a week the Comte d'Artois rebuilt, rearranged and refurnished his castle from threshold to turret, employing 900 workmen day and night. The Marshal de Soubise received Louis XV. as his guest for a day and night at a cost of £80,000. "I hear," said his majesty to the marshal, who owed millions, "that you are in debt." "I will inquire of my steward and inform your majesty," replied the host, hiding a yawn behind his hand.

A Rigid Dutch Law.

More than 200 years ago the Dutch rulers of Ceylon, anxious to retain their monopoly of the precious spice for which that island is famous, enacted a law which made it a capital offense to buy or sell the wild jungle cinnamon, then the only sort known. The plants, wherever found, were held to be the property of the state. If a shrub chanced to spring up in a man's dooryard, he could neither destroy nor use it under severe penalties. Things are happily different now.

Not an Indian.

Mrs. H. S. Boal, a daughter of William F. Cody (Buffalo Bill), lives at a place in Wyoming which bears the strange name of B. X. Ranch, Slack. Among the curious questions put to her by visitors are these:

"I suppose you have a large collection of Indian scalps?"

"Have you ever been scalped yourself?"

"Do you keep buffaloes as domestic pets?"

Once, on the ranch, while she was entertaining a foreign stranger, her father rode by, and she said:

"There goes Colonel Cody now."

The man looked at the horseman long and anxiously.

"Are you sure about it?"

"Certainly. I know him very well indeed."

"Well, I declare! I was never so surprised in my life. Why, that man is a gentleman and not an Indian at all."

Modern Surgery.

Your modern surgeon of note is a "sterile" man. The operating room, almost hermetically sealed and at a temperature of 100 degrees or thereabout, is purified daily by means of a hose throwing a solution of bichloride of mercury over ceiling, walls and floors. The surgeon arrives in an anteroom in his civilian's garb. He is required to be clean shaven, like a monk, says the New York Press. His clothes are removed. Two attendants in the sterilizing room hand him a white duck gown reaching from collar to heel and a cowl of the same material which covers tightly every part of his head except eyes, nose and mouth. The sleeves of the gown reach to his elbows. He incases his hands in the thinnest, finest sterilized rubber gloves. These garments are handed to him in sterilized tongs. There has been no human contact. Thus equipped he is prepared to saw and slice.

A Peculiar Japanese Disease.

The Japanese, like the Chinese, are subject to a peculiar disease called kakke, in which the patient is the victim of an increasing lethargy and weakness and a slow degeneration of the nervous system. It is said to be due to eating rice, which is the staple food of the country, and can be ameliorated, if not cured, by a change of diet.—London Hospital.

A Tiresome Story.

"What's the matter with you?"

"I've just been asking old Jorkins for his daughter."

"And he cut up rough, eh?"

"He did. After he had said 'Yes' he insisted upon telling me the story of his life, and it took a full hour!"—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

The most forlorn looking object in this world is a man guest around the house in the daytime.—Atchison Globe.

STRENGTH IN SOME FORM.

The Quality Above All Else That Woman Admires In Man.

Women abhor cowards and still more sneaks, though I regret to say they often endure cads in a way that belies their intelligence and good taste. They have a quite pathetic desire to look up to men, to feel men their superiors in strength of body and of mind, in calmness of judgment and clearness of intellect. And it is indeed a pity that men so often seem to go out of their way to destroy their most cherished illusions.

Above everything a woman admires strength in a man. It may be strength of body—she will worship a Hercules with the brain of a guinea pig. It may be strength of intellect—she will adore a savant with the body of a gibbon monkey. It may be strength of character—she will break her heart for a politician or a financier who is unswervingly wrapped up in dreams of personal advancement, and who possesses no more heart than an oyster. But strength in some form she craves unceasingly. It is a hereditary instinct that has been bequeathed to her through Eve's first disappointment when Adam was tried in the balance and found wanting. Woman, secretly conscious of her own physical weakness and lack of intellectual strength, demands strength from man to make up for her own deficiencies. Even the strongest women, strong in body and mind, well balanced as Athene herself, though they may shield and protect the weakness of the men they love and stoop to help them, will never do so without a secret feeling of contempt which is destruction of all ideals. Man, in spite of that deplorable start made by Adam, was intended to be woman's protector and refuge from all harm, upon whom she could lean and rely in every event of life's pilgrimage, and when the roles are reversed, as they often so unfortunately are, it is a bad thing both for man and woman. Strength, however, is what women love in men.—Lady Colin Campbell.

Accurate Delay.

Many stories are told of the lack of punctuality upon southern railroads. It is said that when a New England man found his train, advertised to leave at 11 o'clock, starting at exactly that hour he complimented the conductor.

"Just on time, I see," he said genially. "All this talk I've heard of the lateness of your trains is without foundation, I've no doubt."

The conductor smiled at him gently.

"This train, sir," he said without a trace of embarrassment, "is not today's 11 o'clock train, sir. It is yesterday's 11 o'clock. Today's will probably not get here from way down until tomorrow, sir."—Youth's Companion.

After the Dance.

"I hope you have enjoyed the evening, Miss Oliver."

"Not excessively, Mr. Roland. The men are such wretched dancers. I have had only one really good partner."

"My own experience precisely."

"Yes, Mr. Van Twister is the best dancer I ever saw. There he goes now with Grace Turner. It is a pleasure to watch them, isn't it?"

"Yes; he does very nicely—with a partner like your friend Grace. She is the one to whom I was referring just now."

"So I supposed."—New York Herald.

The Solid Hoofed Hog.

There are some solid hoofed hogs in the world, but they are few and far between. Darwin has a great deal to say about such pigs in his "Origin of Species," as there were only three in England at the time he wrote this book.

The solid hoofed hog is not a freak of nature, as many suppose, but a genuine case of reversion to a primitive or ancestral type. It seems that, unlike the prehistoric ancestor of the modern horse, which has four toes or hoofs, the old elotherium, from which animal all members of the swine family are descended, had a solid hoof, and in the course of ages, as the old parent form died out and the modern wild boer, domestic hog, peccary, etc., were evolved this solid hoof became through what Darwin calls "adaptation" and "natural selection" divided up into two parts, so that all modern hogs are cloven hoofed. Occasionally, however, a hog is born with the old original solid hoof of the primitive hog ancestor, thus demonstrating the tendency in all animals to revert now and then to the parent form.

An Obesity Cure.

It is claimed by knowing ones that a new obesity cure which makes the patient do her own massaging has been very successful. The hips are rubbed down vigorously with both hands, stopping for fifteen minutes. This stirs up the circulation and reduces the hips. It is a simple treatment in comparison to the usual gymnastics prescribed.

A Sponge For Rubbers.

Mothers who have children going to school will find that a small sponge kept on purpose for cleaning shoes is a great convenience. It should be tied to a string and kept in the bathroom. It is easily cleaned and leaves no lint on the rubbers.

The ashes, so called, from volcanoes are simply lava that is finely pulverized.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS.

Fresh paint stains will almost always yield to a brisk rubbing with a soft cloth dipped in vinegar.

Vinegar and tea leaves used together are excellent for cleaning specimen glasses and other vases discolored by flowers.

Onions should be kept in a cool, dry place, but never placed in the icebox. They will keep well if placed in paper bags and hung up.

It is said that the wick of a lamp if frayed out to about an inch at the end which is immersed will give a much brighter and stronger flame.

The first time an iron utensil is used over a gas flame it is very apt to crack unless the flame is turned low and the utensil allowed to heat through slowly.

When thread twists in sewing, take hold of the loose end, push the needle down close to the cloth and run the fingers from the needle to the end of the thread. This will quickly remove all the kinks from the thread.

No better way for dusting the walls of a room can be suggested than to cover a broom with a bag of heavy canton flannel made with the fuzzy side out. A drawstring at the top allows the bag to be drawn tightly about the broom.

A Deputy Hostess.

A Pittsburg woman who has just paid a visit to New York says: "The latest addition to the swell household in the metropolis is what is known as a 'personal substitute,' a sort of deputy hostess, who acts in place of the mistress when the latter doesn't feel just right. She is not a 'companion' who has to read and entertain madam when she is bored. Not a bit of it. She is a second edition of the lady of the house and is supposed to relieve her employer of a portion of the social burden. She is, or is supposed to be, a woman of good breeding and limitless tact and is offered as something equally as good as the hostess. I don't know whether she is supposed to preside at formal dinners, but I hear she takes the place of her mistress at the 'at homes' and makes herself generally useful. She gets paid for sharing the social burden, and from the amount of things she does I believe she earns her salary."—Pittsburg Dispatch.

The Family Marketing.

A clever woman who has reduced her housekeeping to a science and magnified it into an art comes out strongly against allowing the man of the family to do the daily catering. "Women should always do the family marketing," she says. "They are less extravagant than men. A man hates to be thought stingy, while a woman doesn't care. If a man sees a handsome joint, he orders it without reflecting that it is too large, perhaps, for his family and that after the first day it will drag out a painful existence through various hashes and stews or else be thrown away. Then, again, if a man orders the dinner he knows just what he is going to have, and there is no room for those pleasant little surprises that are one of the wife's delights."

University Founded by Women.

One of the oldest collegiate institutions for women in the United States is said to be Ingham university at Le Roy, N. Y. In 1835 Misses Mariette and Emily E. Ingham opened the Le Roy Female seminary, obtaining a charter in 1841. It was so successful and ranked so high that its founders when retiring from business wished to perpetuate it and made over the school and its properties to the synod of Genesee. Chartered as a collegiate institution in 1852, it was the first to introduce a college curriculum into the education of young women. In 1857 full university privileges were obtained.

Sauce Tartare.

Every cook should know how to make three or four simple sauces, for nothing adds more to the appetizing qualities of a meal. The French cynic who said that the reason why the English considered it bad form to dip their bread in their sauces was because they had no sauces worth dipping bread into had a slight foundation for his remark. A thick mayonnaise is the basis for sauce tartare. Add to it a tablespoonful of chopped cucumber pickle, chopped olives, a few capers and a dash of onion juice, season rather highly and toss lightly.

A Medicine Cabinet.

Any wall cabinet or shelf in the closet or a starch box with cover hinged on will answer to keep medicine in, but it is convenient to have a compartment to lock to keep the more powerful remedies in, and above all things, if you must have anything poisonous in the house, keep it up high, hidden away in some different place. Then there will be no danger of a sad mistake in the dose. It is well to have one of the cards or slips which contain directions for emergency cases tacked on the door or lid of the box.

Sincerity.

Clerk—I would like to get off early, sir, as my wife wants me to do some odd jobs around the house while it is light enough.

Manager—Can't possibly do it.

Clerk—Thank you, sir. You are very kind.

FACT AND RUMOR.

The Story of One Postponed Cabinet Council In England.

Cabinet councils give rise at times to rumors that dodge fact and mislead public expectancy. One of Lord Beaconsfield's supplies a case in point. Queen Victoria, so runs the tale, was anxious about the state of wind and wave in the mid-Atlantic, which the Princess Louise happened then to be crossing. A lord in waiting knew a professor who was a weather diviner, and to him he went with a message from her majesty, who sent also a message to Lord Beaconsfield. The lord in waiting was sent to a theatrical supper—it was Sunday night—in search of the professor. Him he found in this lively company and was himself constrained to listen to the game of words that was passing round. Which would they choose if they had to marry, Gladstone or Disraeli? All said "Disraeli" except one, and she said "Gladstone, so that I might elope with Disraeli and break his heart."

The lord in waiting, much diverted, went forth and, finding Disraeli in rather low spirits, told him this tale as an instance of his great popularity with all classes of the queen's subjects. The whimsicality of the thing was congenial to Disraeli, who was kept waiting next day at a cabinet council for the arrival of an important colleague. To pass the time he told the assembled ministers the story of the theatrical supper. Lord Cairns (absit omen), hearing, did not smile, and his solemnity put out of countenance the prime minister, who at once made the nonarrival of the colleague an excuse for postponing the council for a couple of hours. The "balance of power" was then unstable, and that afternoon the papers had headings: "War Imminent. A Second Cabinet Council Summoned." For once the ladies of the stage made history and staggered the Stock Exchange.—London Chronicle.

An Insinuation.

It was a warm Sunday morning in church. Fans were fluttering, hymnals flopping, handkerchiefs mopping streaming faces, and the minister thought his audience a little lax in attention. Finally he led up to a rebuke for its lack of consideration for sacred and important things. Said he:

"People are prone to attend to the unimportant things of life."

And he gave a few examples to illustrate his idea. Presently he made his pertinent application.

"Now," said he, "you are attentive to your own comfort this morning, to the sinful neglect of the holy word. Take no thought for the heat," he said dramatically, "for you may be dead tomorrow."—Detroit Free Press.

Influence of Chess.

If a Scottish scientist is to be believed, the people of those countries in which chess is most frequently played are invariably more civilized than those who inhabit countries in which little attention is paid to this great game.

The best chess players in the world, he points out, were to be found in Spain during the period of its splendor and in Italy during the renaissance, whereas today there are few persons in those countries who care for the game.

Noisy Fish.

Many fish can produce musical sounds. The red gurnard has earned the name of seacock from the crowing noise which it makes, while another species is called the piper. Others, notably two species of ophidium, have sound producing apparatus, consisting of small movable bones, which can be made to produce a sharp rattle. The curious "drumming" made by the Mediterranean fish known as the maigre can be heard from a depth of thirty fathoms.

The Bee's Market Basket.

Every bee carries his market basket around his hind legs. Any one examining the body of a bee through a microscope will observe that on the hind legs of a bee there is a fringe of stiff hairs on the surface, the hairs approaching each other at the tips so as to form a sort of cage. This is the bee's basket.

There is nothing more expensive than experience and nothing of which there is more sold.—Atchison Globe.

Perils of the Deep.

"He crossed the Atlantic twinty-sivin times an' niver got drownded but wanst."

"Indade! An' which one of his trips was it he was drownded on?"

"Oi'm not sure, but Oi think it was the twinty-sivinth."

"He was lucky. Manny a man would have wint to the bottom on his first v'yage instead of waiting till the last."

"Right ye are. More people are drownded by water than by railroad wrecks."

"It's a fatal death, begorra."—Kansas City Journal.

Help the Town.

Every good advertiser helps to build up the community. Every merchant who fails to advertise is not only neglecting an opportunity which could be used to his own advantag, but he fails to help the town to grown when it might be gradually coming to a point of more importance as a trading centre, and where it would offer him a better field for the extension of his business. People wonder why some towns are considered live and others dead. They do not understand that the live town is the abiding place of live merchants, and that the dead town is a place where the worst sort of business men are making a futile effort to keep business from going to pieces by inadequate, second-rate advertising.—Advertising World.

Death of Mrs. Elizabeth Hall Reed.

Mrs. Elizabeth Hall Reed, died suddenly of paralysis of the heart, on the 2nd inst, at the residence of her daughter Mrs. Fullmer, wife of Dr. Fullmer, of Renovo, aged 66 years. Her home was 520 High St. Williamsport. She has been a great sufferer from rheumatism for a number of years, and at the solicitations of friends was spending some time with her daughter and apparently was better than usual. On the morning of her death she arose as usual dressed and went down stairs. Not feeling quite comfortable returned to her room and lay down on the bed. Her husband followed a few minutes later, and found her unconscious. She only gasped a few times and the vital spark had fled.

The deceased was a daughter of the late T. Miller Hall, of Milesburg (formerly sheriff of Centre Co.,) where she was born and raised. In 1859 she married Prof. John T. Reed, who at that time was a teacher in Centre Co. Later he drifted to Lycoming Co. After pursuing his profession a number of years he was elected Superintendent of Common Schools of Lycoming Co., three consecutive terms. He has resided in the city of Williamsport a number of years.

Mr. Reed was a consistent member of the M. E. Church for half a century. Her home life well illustrated her profession. She will be sadly missed in the home, in the Church, and a large circle of friends, acquaintances and neighbors. She was laid to rest in Grandview cemetery, from her late home, in the city of Williamsport.

She is survived by her husband, and two children, James H. of Williamsport and Mrs. Clara Fullmer of Renovo and one sister, Mrs. Col. Weaver, of Milesburg, and three brothers.

Death of Miss Agnes McMahon.

She gradually grew worse and about eleven o'clock on Thursday night, March 5th, 1903, death claimed her.

An Arbor Day Thought or Two.

Governor Pennypacker has named April 17, as arbor day. Everybody that has just a little ground or a large plot that is not otherwise occupied should observe the day by planting as many trees as possible. Barren spots are to be found here there and everywhere, that would support one or many trees, that could be converted into a little forest and thus made useful by the proper observance of arbor day, or any other day during the season for planting trees. A plot of ground otherwise useless would grow in value each year if planted in trees.

This Concerns Every Citizen.

Within the past three years the citizens of Bellefonte have contributed generously to the religious, physical and moral needs of our people. Petrikin Hall has been erected at great expense. Handsome subscriptions have been made to the new hospital, and a large sum of money has been raised for the Young Men's Christian Association. Our churches have kept pace with the times, and to the stranger the outward appearance of our town would indicate prosperity.

Are we receiving any benefit of the prosperous era which the country at large is now enjoying? We fear the material interests of the community do not receive the attention they should. In fact, it is a serious question to know whether we are not retrograding. The Glass works, which have been a great benefit to our town, are now standing idle, and a large number of employes, who, for several years past had steady employment at good wages, have been compelled to seek work elsewhere.

It is rumored on our streets, and we have reason to believe there is no doubt of the fact, that the Scale works, at which we have looked with pride for so long, will be disbanded, and the machinery taken away, thus throwing a great number of persons out of employment. It is certainly a deplorable state of affairs, and something should be done by our businessmen to draw capital to Bellefonte. In other towns much has been accomplished by the united effort of those interested in public affairs. We have in Bellefonte a Board of Trade, but we hear of nothing being done by that body to build up our own town.

We hope our citizens will be imbued with enough spirit of enterprise to make an effort to have our Glass works equipped in a most modern manner, that we may compete with any factory in the country. The material for making glass is at our doors and there is nowhere else that it can be made cheaper or better, and as for the Scale works, let us interest ourselves enough to start the plant as soon as the present firm leaves. There is a great and growing market for scales, and there is no reason why we cannot compete successfully with any manufacturer.

Let us arise from our lethargy and make a determined effort to boom Bellefonte and revive our drooping energies that it may be one of the most prosperous business towns in Central Pennsylvania.

Burgess Walker Acts at Once.

W. Harrison Walker, Esq, Burgess, acting upon the information given in Friday's News called upon those who have been operating Slot Machines, and gave them until Saturday morning to remove them from their premises.

In going the rounds Saturday, he discovered that instead of a removal they had simple put them to one side, ready to be used again when wanted.

Mr. Walker gave them to understand this would not do, that they could not remain upon the premises, or he would have them confiscated. It is needless to say they will now go.

And further the Burgess informed the policemen, that hereafter he would expect them to report to him at once, any violation of this law coming to their knowledge, that it was their business, and not the "Daily News" to inform him of violations of the law.

He gave these gentlemen to understand that their services were to be in the interest of ALL and not to protect a very FEW who are disposed to defy the law.

We hope this is the last time our space will have to be taken up by this subject, although, we assure our readers that if at any time in the future, Slot Machines are allowed to run openly as they have done, we will call attention of the Council to the methods of the guardians of our peace in winking at crime. We have an idea the members of Council will see that they at least earn their wages.

New Superintendent at the Hospital.

The Bellefonte Hospital has been fortunate in securing the service of Miss Eva Lippiatt to succeed Miss Jones who lately resigned the position of Superintendent of the hospital.

Miss Lippiatt comes highly recommended and is a graduate of the Williamsport Hospital, and General Memorial Hospital of New York City, for the past year she has held the position of first assistant Supt., in the Harrisburg Hospital.

We are glad that the Hospital Managers have been able to secure the services of one so eminently qualified, to perform the important duties of Superintendent of this institution. The public are deeply interested in everything pertaining to the Hospital, and anxious for its success in every particular.

The Next Thing in Order.

The balmy springtime days are approaching, when cleaning up and renovating will be order. In many alleys and back yards the accumulation of the winter's ashes and rubbish can be seen, which is not only an eyesore to the public, but unless removed before warm weather approaches will be a menace to health. Therefore, all residents should inaugurate a cleaning-up movement as soon as the frost is out of the ground, for the general good and health of the city.

A Famous Sideboard.

Laden with wine glasses, decanters, siphons, and other beer steins, a sideboard of remarkable associations now graces a saloon in Washington city. This sideboard was originally presented to Mrs. Hayes when her husband was president in recognition of her refusal to allow liquors on the table at the white house. It was the gift of numerous young woman of Cincinnati, among whom were Mrs. Bellamy Storer, wife of the ambassador to Austria, and Mrs. Taft, wife of the civil Governor of the Philippines. The sideboard shared the fate of many another piece of white house furniture at the general clearing out auction recently. It was knocked down to its present owner for $85, and transferred from the executive halls to a saloon, where it has become not merely an article of use, but has furnished to iconoclasts the subject for many a bibulous jest.

No sooner did it become known that the historic bit of furniture was being thus desecrated than John R. McLean offered $850, ten times the price it had been bought at, for the sideboard. The new owner, realizing the advertising value of the sideboard, declined. Then Col. Webb Hayes, anxious to rescue the prized possession of his mother from vandals, attempted to purchase it, but he was informed that the price placed on it was $3,000. So, surrounded by bacchanalina insignia, in an atmosphere heavy with the fumes of alcohol, the old sideboard, the gift of the Cincinnati belles, the most cherished possession of the white ribbon mistress of the white house, stands while ribald jests are abroad at the sad descent from its former high estate.

The Lee Monument.

Judge Lumbard, editor of the Snyder County Tribune, who was a gallant Union soldier during the Civil war, has written a stiff article against the proposition that the State of Pennsylvania erect a monument of General Robert E. Lee on the battlefield at Gettysburg. Judge Lumbard says if the statue should be erected, with an inscription similar to the following, there could not be much objection:

ROBERT E. LEE,
Commanded the Rebel Army of Northern Virginia,
Gettysburg, July 1, 2 and 3, 1863,
Defeated by the Union Army commanded by
GEN. GEORGE G. MEADE, with a loss of fully one-third of the Rebel Army.
Lee, an able but misguided soldier, was born in Virginia, educated at West Point - Col. of the 2d U. S.
When the crucial hour arrived he resigned his commission in the old army and drew his sword against the Government that educated him.

Worthy of Notice.

A confectioner said to a White Ribboner lately: "I know our place smells like a liquor shop Do not blame me but my patrons. Wine used to be considered strong enough for flavoring dainties, but now they want rum or brandy." What if every Christian woman would refrain from using anything belonging to the alcoholic family in desserts? It would surely help to a more "healthy appetite."

Mrs. Sara Louisa Oberholtzer, the newly elected president of the Pennsylvania Woman's Press Association, has a national and an international reputation as an economist and writer. Mrs Obenholtzer is an enthusiast on the subject of school savings banks, believing that if pennies were saved by children habits of frugality would be so engrafted in their lives that temperance and industry would rule.

Mrs. Oberholtzer is superintendent of school saving banks in the World's and National W. C. T. Unions. Chester County, Pa., has the honor of being the home of her childhood.

William R. Brachbill Injured.

William R. Brachbill, son of Mrs. Margaret A. Brachbill, of East Howard street, was seriously if not fatally injured at Punxsutawney Tuesday morning. He was breaking on a freight train for the Pennsylvania Railroad company and about 5 o'clock Tuesday morning while at work in the yard he was thrown under the train. The train passed over him cutting off the toes on both feet and crushing his left arm so badly that it will be necessary to amputate it at the shoulder.

The unfortunate man's uncle W. R. Brachbill, his mother, wife and baby left for Punxsutawney Tuesday afternoon.

A Young Bride.

Probably the youngest bride ever married in Bradford county is Miss Elsie Bickham, of Towanda township, who was married Monday of last week to Franklin Birch, of the same place. The bride is but thirteen years of age and Birch is twenty-three.

Justice Thompson performed the ceremony. The youthful housewife is of small stature and wore a short skirt. She undoubtedly has the distinction of being the youngest bride in that section.

Wedded at Pine Grove Mills.

A very pretty wedding took place on Wednesday evening at the Lutheran parsonage at Pine Grove Mills. The contracting parties were Mr. I. Wm. Wert, and Miss Carrie B. Davis. The ceremony was performed by Rev. C. T. Aikens. The groom is an industrious young man and operates a stave mill near Graysville, and the bride is a daughter of B. F. Davis, of Baileyville.

Drastic Measures Needed to Protect Our Fish.

According to men who have been studying the subject, the time has come when something positive must be done by the state if there are to be any but migratory fish in the inland rivers and small streams of Pennsylvania, says the Harrisburg Independent.

Reports to the state fish commission indicate that there are fewer fish in the inland streams of this commonwealth than for many years, and yet the water is here, the fool is here and all the surroundings for ten or more years are still here, but the fish are gone.

What the reason for this condition may be the commission is unable to definitely ascertain, although the theory is that the same cause that exists in this locality can be applied to the entire state, and that is the use of seine nets. Fully one hundred seines are constantly at work within a limit of thirty miles of Harrisburg, ten miles south and twenty miles north of the city.

Many of these seines are illegally used every day and night of the week, including Sunday, within a few miles of Harrisburg, and the catch is sold publicly in the markets of that city and adjacent towns. Black bass, crapple and Susquehanna salmon are taken by the ton and openly sold, contrary to the fish laws.

Certain legislators who have looked into this matter during the present session claim that one-fourth of the money spent by the state in propagation of fish if applied to protect them will in a short time restore the streams of the state to their former condition.

Numerous bills for the protection of the fish in the streams of Pennsylvania and for the erection of new hatcheries are pending in the legislature.

The house Friday passed finally the bill creating a department of fisheries, with a $2,500 chief, who, with four of the five members of the board of fish commissioners as now constituted, is to have charge of the work of fish culture in Pennsylvania and the enforcement of the fishing laws.

This bill is backed by the Pennsylvania Fish Protective association, of which Speaker Walton, of the house of representative, is the vice president. The measure, in fact, was drafted by the speaker himself, though introduced by Representive Mansfield, of Beaver.

The bill is regarded as almost certain to pass the senate. Part of the new department plan is to add to the propagation of trout, the cultivation of bass, catfish, perch, shad and other varieties, and to erect an additional hatchery on ground to be donated in Wayne county. The present hatcheries are at Corry, Allen town and Bristol.

Commercial Value of Sun-Light.

A noteworthy circumstance connected with the recent movement of land values in Manhattan (New York City proper) is that corner lots have risen in price more rapidly than inside lots.

Until recently a corner lot seldom brought more than from one-third to one-half more than an inside lot. Today the greater price of corner lots is seldom less than 75 per cent., and frequently it is more than 100 per cent In regular avenue block of eight lots the middle four constitute what are here meant by inside lots. The lot adjoining each corner was formerly, as a rule, classed in price with the middle four, but lately this lot has been taken out of the category of inside lots by a slight enhancement of value, say 10 per cent., as compared with the middle four.

A convenient illustration is afforded by the block front on the west side of Broadway, between 112th and 113th streets, which was sold by auction in 1886 and again 1899. At the first sale the block brought $45,050, one of the corners fetching 34 per cent. more than an inside lot. No difference in price was noted between the lot next to the corner and an adjacent inside lot. At the second sale the block brought $150,000, and one corner sold for 114 per cent., and the other for 134 per cent. more than inside lots. The lot next to each corner commanded a small premium over inside lots.

The "Hello" Would Not Work.

A little Miss residing on Linn street came down town Monday to see one of the leading physicians. When she went into the office the Doctor was not there but there was some stranger evidently waiting on his return. He was seemingly in a hurry and every now and then would go to the electric light switch and turn it and then listen. After he had done this several times he finally asked the litttle girl whether the Doctor lived far away. She told him he lived quite convenient. He then said that he had been calling him on the telephone for the last hour but no one would answer. She informed him that it was not the telephone he was working at but the electric light. He had nothing further to say, and concluding he was in no particular hurry to see the Doctor left the office.

Moral Reform.

The good people of McConnelsburg have organized a Moral Reform Association.

Organizations of the same kind, in the past have very largely crippled their usefulness by taking a contracted view of the situation which confronted them.

As a rule but one of the evils which society confronts has been given attention and then the mistake has generally been made in the remedy sought to be applied, coersion instead of persuasion.

However the very best institution for the teaching of moral reform that was ever organized, save only the Christian church, is the home. If the heads of families in this community, as well as other communities, would devote their time and attention to the education of their children, not only mentally, but also morally, if they would so care for and guard them as to teach them to will to do that which is right instead of neglecting them and permitting them to roam the streets at will, in order that they, the parents, may have time to poke their noses into and gossip about the affairs of other people, in which they have no concern and feel no real interest there would be very little occasion for moral reform organizations.

The only true way to reform that in society which is worth reforming, is to so educate and cultivate the individual as to have him or her eschue that which is wrong on account of the inculcated abhorrence of it. The place for this education to start is the home, which is the foundation of society, the place for its completion is the Christian church with its various organizations.

All that cannot be reached in this way can only be regulated and controlled by the police powers.

Inculcate in the rising generation a correct idea of true manhood and womanhood and in the years to come drunkards, courtesans, liars, long tongued gossipers, who build mountains of mischief out of the imaginations prompted by their own evil hearts and murderers less dangerous and injurious than the lying gossips, will all be rarities.

Erie Wants Encampment

Erie is putting forth a strong effort to secure the encampment of the Second brigade, National Guard of Pennsylvania, the coming summer. The only other place that is an applicant for the honor and benifit thus far is Somerset, the town that had it in 1901. The Erie claim is that, that place has not yet had the encampment of the brigade, though there is a splendid sight for it along the lake front near that enterprising and pretty city. The only argument that can be put up against Erie is that it is not central for mobilising of the brigade, and therefore it would cost more to transport troops to that point than to some more central place.

It is to the advantage of the National Guard of Pennsylvania to give its soldiers an opportunity to see and be seen in various sections of the state. Variety creates interest and stimulates recruiting. A community does not have an opportunity for learning the true character and worth of the state's military force until it sees it in actual service such as the annual encampment affords. If it was left with the various organizations of the Second brigade to determine the place, Erie would be most likely to secure the prize. But it is the business of those who do the selecting of camping places to practice as much economy as is consistant with the good of the service; yet all sections have equal claim for consideration, for the money that sustains the state's militia is drawn from all over the state. It is not always wise to consider only the cost or cheapness of a thing.

W. Harrison Walker Entertained the Town Council.

W. Harrison Walker, Esq., newly elected burgess of Bellefonte, entertained the members of Council for dinner Wednesday evening, at his residence on Linn Street.

It has been the custom from time immemorial for the Burgess to thus entertain, immediately after being inducted into office, and these occasions are looked forward to, with great interest and pleasure by those who are entitled, by virtue of position, to be present.

The function is entirely of a social character, no political significance being attached to it, and is simply for the purpose of becoming better acquainted with each other, as the relations between the Burgess and Council will be of a very close character during the next three years.

Mr. and Mrs. Walker not only entertained hospitably, but handsomely as well. There beautiful home never looked more attractive then it did Wednesday night, and was beautifully decorated, throughout, the prevailing colors being pink and white. The dining room looked especially inviting having several large candelabrums arranged on the table, and in various parts of the room. The feast spread before the guests, was a marvel of the skill and product, of the culinary department. After the feast was over cigars were handed round and for a couple of hours the assembled dignitaries unbended themselves and spent the time in social converse.

Those present were as follows:

Ex-President of council W. Fred Reynolds, Wm. Derstine, W. R. Jenkins, Edward Whittaker, Harry Fenlon, George Mallory, Dr. Kirk, Joe. Wise, D. F. Fortney Esq., and Sheriff Hugh S. Taylor.

Ghosts would frighten many people who are not afraid of germs. Yet there is a real danger. If this microscopic animalism could be magnified to a size in proportion to its deadliness it would show like a giant python, or fire breathing wagon. The one fact to remember is that the germ is powerless to harm the body when the blood is pure. It is far easier to keep the germ out than to drive it out after it obtains a hold on the system. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is the most powerful and perfect of blood purifying medicines. It increases the quanity as well as the quality of the blood, and enables the body to resist disease, or to throw it off if disease has obtained a footing in some weak organ. Whereever the digestion is impared, the nutrition of the body is diminished, for the blood is made from the food which is eaten and half digested food cannot supply the body with blood in quanity and quality adequate to its needs. For this condition there is no remedy equal to "Golden Medical Discovery." It cures ninety-eight out of every hundred persons who give it a fair trial When there is constipation Dr Pierce's Pleasant Pellets will promptly relieve and permanently cure.

—Edmund Shaw Esq., entered suit in court of common pleas of Blair county Monday morning in behalf of Millard F. Blake, of Martinsburg, against the Pennsylvania Railroad company to recover the sum of $282.875.40 as royalty for use of certain patents issued to Mr. Blake by the government of the United States of 1896 and 1899. The claim is based upon a contract said to have been made with the company for the use of these patents, which have been in use by this company since 1899, in the transportation of coal, iron ore, limestone and other freight. The invention of Mr. Blake as represented by his patents secures to him royalty for the use of all freight cars which are unloaded through doors or openings in the bottom of the cars and known as the dumping cars.

—The Morriedale Coal company have completed their estimate of the tonnage of their new mines lately purchased by them. They claim that their lands will yield 130 millions of tons, and can employ 30 men daily for at least 50 years, hence.

—State Forestry Commissioner Dr. J. T. Rothrock has withdrawn his letter of resignation at the earnest request of Gov. Pennypacker. Dr. Rothrock is a valuable man in this position and it is a gratification to all that he has decided to remain and fill out the term for which he was appointed.

—Maggie, the infant child of Mr. and Mrs. Gibeony Lester, died Sunday morning at the parents home in the Collins row. The funeral occurred Monday morning from St. John's Catholic church. Interment in the Catholic cemetery.

—The will of the late Amanda M. Sigle of Lewistown, leaves the sum of $1,000 each to the Methodist and Presbyterian churches of that town, to be invested for the benefit of the poor of those parishes. with a view to eventually securing sufficient funds to start a home for the poor.

—A telepoone message from Punxsutawney Wednesday stated that Wm. Brackbill who was so terribly injured by the cars on Tuesday has been so weak ever since the accident that the surgeons has not been able to perform the operation of amputating his arm. It is very much feared that he cannot possibly recover.

—Mrs. Baylor, of Reedsville, house keeper for Henry Barner, ate some candy which she found on the hall table, and became violently ill. Physicians relieved her by the use of a stomach pump. The contents of her stomach and the remaining candy were analyzed, and both were found to contain strychnine. It is not known how the poisoned candy came to be in the house.

—We are glad to number among our exchanges the Huntingdon Monitor. It is a clean readable sheet, full of news and bears the evidence of care, thought and brains in its make up. The only fault we can possibly find is its intense Democratic tone. Aside from this, it is one of the most interesting and reliable weeky's that reaches our sanctum. The Editor S. E. Fleming Esq., wields a trenchant pen, and keeps the Republicans of Huntingdon county from becoming liver grown. Our acquaintance with Editor Fleming dates many years and we have always esteemed his friendship in the highest degree.

—Rev. John A. Wood, pastor of the First M. E. Church of Tyrone, preached last Sunday night on "The Sin of Tyrone" He told his hearers many things that were not exactly palatable but were true nevertheless. It seems that the great trouble with the Tyrone people is that they talk too much. They gossip, they say unkind things about their neighbors and have nothing good to say about any body or anything. They say Rev. Wood made it very warm for his hearers, he struck out from the shoulder and made a hit every time. It strikes us there are some other matters which deserve attention from the clergy of that village beside gossip.

—The jewish people will celebrate the feast of Purim from March 13 to 19. The holiday is one of rejoicing, and special services are held at this time.

—George Derr, of Laurelto, aged 72 years, suicided at his barn early Friday morning by cutting his throat with a butcher knife. Ill health was the cause. A widow and five children survive.

—Mr. and Mrs. James Wallace are rejoicing over the arrival of a sweet baby boy which came to their home in Milesburg a few days ago. It was immediately named for its grand-father, Frank Wallace.

—Prof. J. Angel, Eye Specialist, will be at the Brockerhoff House Wednesday, March 18. Eyes examined free. Prof. Angel is remarkably successful in adjusting glasses and his charges are exceedingly reasonable.

—The W. C. T. U. are famous for their good dinners and suppers, and on this evening from 5 to 8 they will serve a chicken and biscuit supper, with baked beans, Boston style, and lots of other appetizing dishes, relishes etc. Cakes and candies and fancy articles will be on sale at the Petrikin Cafe.

—The many friends of Howard Stover tendered a surprise party to that gentleman at his home on Reynolds Avenue Saturday evening, the occasion being his 29th, birthday. About twenty-five people were present and all spent a most pleasant evening. Quite a number of valuable presents were received by Mr. Stover, among the number being a handsome Morris chair.

—Edward Homan, of Bellefonte, and Miss Sarah A. Gares, of Williamsport, were united in marriage at the bride,s parents, home on East Jefferson street, Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock. The Rev. J. W. A. Kelly, pastor of the United Brethren church, performed the ceremony, which was followed by a wedding supper. The couple will reside in this city.

—The Erie mail was over two hours late in arriving in Lock Haven Sunday morning. The delay was due to a freight wreck which occurred early in the morning near Allen's tower, the result of a broken axle. Eight cars, loaded with coal, were piled up on the Pennsy tracks. The Sunbury and Williamsport work trains cleared the tracks. During the blockade the trains used the Reading tracks to Williamsport.

—Perry County Democrat: The defunct Iron City Mutual Fire Insurance Co. has placed claims in the hands of an attorney in this town to collect old assessments which it is said will take $28 000 out of the pockets of the people of this county. Some of the claims against a single individual amount to as much as $1,800 on a $1,000 policy. The company is insolvent and it seems like an outrage and a miscarriage of justice to compel the payment of these old assessments.

—Garman's opera house was crowded Wednesday evening to witness Simville's production of "Romeo and Juliet." The play was well presented, the scenery and costumes unusually fine and the company a strong one. Charles Balser made an excellent "Romeo" and Pauline Pauli as "Juliet" filled her part very satisfactorily. Edward N. Hoyt as Mercutio and Fannie Hoyt as nurse to Juliet, deserve special mention. Taken as a whole it was a very creditable performance.

—The Presbyterians of Tyrone held an election for Sunday school officers on Tuesday night. In order to insure a large attendance, they had an illustrated lecture on the Holy Land, by Rev. Jolly. Every one turned out, and there was a large audience. First they would vote awhile, then the lecture would proceed, and when they got tired of the lecture, they would vote a while longer, in this manner they succeeded in electing competent officers and at the same time passed the evening pleasantly.

—A good way to test a swindling scheme is to offer a non-negotiable note when the time comes for signing. Mark out the words "order" or "bearer" which always follows the blank line in which is written the name of party to whom the note is given. Make the note payable to him alone. That makes you all right. If the note is given in lieu of the contracts which the other party offers, just write at the head of your signature: "The payment of this note made conditional upon the performance of certain contracts for which it was given." Always remember that no matter what oral contracts you may have, it will have nothing to do with the payment of the note unless it appears on the face of the note.—Financier.

Pupils Raise Funds for New Hospital.

Thursday Philadelphia Press contains portraits of Miss Winifred Gates and Miss Lizzie Yohey, two pupils of the B class of the Bellefonte High school who raised the most money of any in class for new hospital fund.

The pupils of the High school have raised nearly $200 by holding festivals and selling ice cream and cake. Prof. John D. Meyer, the principal has taken a great interest in the movement, and about one month ago he introduced into his school a novel scheme for raising money for this object

To the B class of forty-two students he gave 5 cents each, and then requested them to make just as much out of the gift as they could during the month. This week two-thirds of the class turned in $65.00. Lizzie Yohey's amount was the largest $6.75 and Winifred Gates, the next with $6.00. The girls invested their nickles in sugar and made "fudge" and other home made candies and sold them.

Young America's Banquet.

The Young America Reform Club gave their third banquet Monday night in their handsome and cozy rooms in the Watchman building and it proved to be the finest of the season. James Shorter was the caterer and all the delicacies of the season were served. The toast-master of the evening was Edward Struble, who proved to be the right man in the right place. There were many responses by the members of the club and the best of good feeling prevailed. There was a large turnout of the members, about thirty-five being present. This club makes quite a feature of banquets and in the language of one of the members "there's still another to follow."

Death of Mrs. George Ritter.

Mrs. Ritter was born in Centre county, May 1st 1830, but had been a resident of Lock Haven many years. She was a kind motherly woman, devoted to her home and beloved by all who knew her. For many years she was a member of St. John's Lutheran church. Mrs. Ritter was twice married, her first husband, being Samuel Kettner. She is survived by her second husband, George Ritter, who will be 91 years old on the 8th inst., by two sons, Frank Ritter and A. N. Kettner, of Lock Haven, and two grandchildren. The following named brothers and sisters also survive: Johnthan F. and Benjamin Bierly, of McElhattan; J. H. Bierley, Westfield, Pa.; J. E. Bierley, Marsh Creek; Mrs. Albert Schwarm, Rebersburg; Mrs. Kate Miller, Tylersville; Mrs. Frank Coleman, Orangeville, Ill.; Mrs. Sophia Mechtley, Lock Haven and Mrs. Lavina Moore, Nittany Valley.

A very pretty wedding was celebrated Thursday, March 5th, at the home of the brides parents at Runville. The happy parties to this contract were Mr. John Furl and Miss Sallie Hancock. The ceremony was performed by Rev. G. A. Sparks of Runville.

The wedding march was rendered by Miss Ada Hancock, a sister of the bride. Immediately after the ceremony a sumptuous wedding feast was served to all present.

MAGNETISM OF MISERY.

Men Haunt Scenes That Revive Memories of Pain.

Every storm, earthquake or disaster of any kind brings out a curious phase of human nature. Many of those who have seen their houses destroyed or their nearest relatives killed return as soon as possible to the scenes of devastation. In some instances this is explained by the fact that there are more opportunities of earning a livelihood among old neighbors than among new surroundings. In numerous cases, however, no such business reason operates as an inducement. The magnet is sentiment, not money. As some mourners devote every holiday to visiting graves, so a large fraction of the homeless and bereaved go back to spend the remainder of their days in the scenes that recall calamity and gloom.

It was so after the great London fire, it was so after the Lisbon earthquake, it was so after the yellow fever swept Philadelphia, and in more recent years the Chicago fire, the Mississippi floods, Charleston, Johnstown and other catastrophes confirm the old experience. Apparently the desire to gain new pleasures is no more keen than the wish to revive the memory of old pain. Our last storm destroyed much property and many lives, but we will see people choosing homes in sight of the telegraph pole from which the fatal live wire dangled or the flooded stream in which the only son was drowned.—Philadelphia Ledger.

A MARVELOUS STRUCTURE.

The Grandeur of the Great Natural Bridge In Virginia.

Virginia is a state which abounds with springs which have medicinal properties. It is also a state in which nearly every foot of ground has historic associations, and this fact, together with its glorious landscapes, makes it an unusually interesting state to visit. There are thousands of resorts, each of which has its own special attractions, but none has attracted more visitors than the resorts in the vicinity of the Great Natural Bridge, which is one of the natural wonders of the United States.

This marvelous structure overlooks the James river valley, being on the western slope of the Blue mountains. It is just about the center of the state. It approaches Niagara in grandeur and exceeds it in height and awful mystery. It is a single block of limestone, with many shades of color. The walls are smooth, as if cut with chisels, and there is no sign of displacement.

The visitor follows a tumbling cascade down a deep fissure in the mountain under some of the largest arbor vitæ trees in the world and, turning down a line of steps cut into the precipice, suddenly finds himself by a swift stream in a dark canyon and the great bridge far above him. Birds high in air pass under the blue arch. The place is full of echoes, and the winds and waters moan eternally.

Washington when a surveyor for Lord Fairfax visited the natural bridge and carved his name, where it may still be seen. The original bridge tract was granted by King George III. to Thomas Jefferson in 1774. After he was president Jefferson visited the place, surveyed it and made the map with his own hands. Jefferson spoke of the place as "a famous place that will draw the attention of the world." Chief Justice Marshall wrote of the bridge as "God's greatest miracle in stone." Henry Clay wrote of "the bridge not made with hands that span a river, carries a highway and makes two mountains one."—Detroit Free Press.

Breathing of Insects.

Insects generally breathe through special pores in various parts of their bodies, and if these pores are closed by oil they are suffocated. Any one may test this by dropping sweet oil on the thorax or back of a wasp. It very soon dies. For this reason oil has been found one of the best things to use for the destruction of insects.

The biggest building stones ever used are found not in Egypt, but at Baalbec, in Syria. They measure 60 feet long and 20 feet square.

THE CITY OF MEKINEZ.

One of the Royal Residences of the Sultan of Morocco.

There is no more interesting city in Morocco than Mekinez. Founded and built by Mulai Ismain, the tyrannical sultan who reigned through the middle of the eighteenth century, it still displays the extraordinary buildings which he caused to be erected, largely by the aid of Christian slaves. Today it is impossible even to guess the purposes for which many of these masses of masonry were constructed. Walls of great thickness, some wide enough to drive a carriage and pair along, are met with in the most unexpected places, running here parallel, here at right angles to one another, and seeming as though built for no purpose except for the employment of the vast number of forced laborers that Mulai Ismain always kept at his court. Here and there are gateways of great beauty, such as the delicate tiled gate of "Mansur el-Alj," with its large marble columns and Corinthian capitals, supporting buttress of gray stone and arabesques, but on the whole it is rather the vastness of the buildings than any artistic value that is remarkable.

The old palaces of Mulai Ismain are in ruins today, and each sultan in his turn has erected new residences till the imperial palace today consists of a collection of buildings of every shape and size, scattered among gardens inclosed by high walls. A tower, which was uncompleted at the time of the late sultan's death, remains today just as the workmen left it, with the scaffolding still standing. Adjoining the palace is a large park, in which are kept a number of mares, ostriches and gazelles.

The city itself is tolerably clean, and possesses no particular features that are not common to all Moorish towns. The entrance of the principal mosque is striking, with great bronze doors said to have been brought by the Moors from Spain. The shops are comparatively few, and the trade never large.—London Times.

OUR FIRST FREE SCHOOL.

It Was Established In Massachusetts In the Year 1641.

The first free school established in the United States was in the province of Massachusetts Bay in the year 1641 by order of the general colonial court. In 1647 the same authority declared that free schools should be established within every town having fifty householders under penalty of a fine of £5. This fine was doubled by a declaration made in 1671 and again doubled in 1683. Connecticut established free schools in 1644 and levied a tax for their support. Maryland established free schools in 1694 and levied a tax on negroes, pelts, furs and beef and pork for their support. Governor Berkeley declared in 1649 the hope that free schools would never be established in Virginia, but the towns of Charleston and Elizabeth did establish them in that year, and Elizabeth set aside 200 acres of land and eight cows, the increase from which was applied to support the schools. Four years later the number of cows had increased to forty. Pennsylvania was settled by Penn on the Delaware river in 1681, and the same year a free school, which is still conducted under the auspices of the Friends, or Quakers, was established in Philadelphia. Among the declarations of Penn in his "frame of government" he asserted this immortal truth, long since forgotten by the men who have been responsible for the government of the commonwealth: "Any government is free to the people under it, whatever be the frame, where the law rules, and the people are a party to those laws. More than this is tyranny, oligarchy and confusion." This sentence is inscribed in a brouze tablet implaced in the walls of Independence hall.

Older Still.

Major Pond, the lecture manager, was negotiating with John Kendrick Bangs for the latter's talk on "The Evolution of the Humorist." The major made some inquiries as to the scope of the lecture, and Bangs replied that it began with Adam and Eve and came down to the present day.

"Can't you give 'em something older than that?" the manager asked jokingly.

The funny man reflected for a moment and then said, "I might work in some of your jokes if you think the audience will stand it."

Youth's Unrestraint.

"Don't you sometimes long for your childhood's happy days?" said the sentimental person.

"Yes," answered Miss Cayenne, "there are times when I would enjoy hanging on the fence and making faces at people I don't like instead of having to say: 'How do you do, dear? So glad to see you!'"—Washington Star.

A Good Reason.

"What makes you think, sir, that I will not be able to support your daughter?"

"Well, I haven't been able to myself."—Brooklyn Life.

A weak stomach weakens the man, because it cannot transform the food he eats into nourishment. THE RAINBOW.

Lasting Superstitions That Hang About the Arch of Promise.

"Rainbow gold" used to be the warp and woof of many a childish dream. The pot of treasure buried "where the end of the bow touches the ground" has been searched for by trusting children again and again. The present generation of childhood is so blase, however, that such gentle fantasies are apt to be received with scorn.

There are many lasting superstitions connected with the arch of promise, however. In many countries the rainbow is spoken of as being a great bent pump or siphon tube, drawing water from the sea by mechanical means.

In parts of Russia, in the Don country and also in Moscow and vicinity the rainbow is known by a word which is equivalent to "the bent water pipe." In nearly all Slavonic dialects it is known by terms signifying "the cloud siphon," and in Hungary it is "the pump," "Noah's pump" or "God's pump."

In the province of Charkov, Russia, the rainbow is said to drain the wells, and to prevent this many are provided with heavy, tight fitting stone platforms. In the province of Saratov the bow is said to be under the control of three angels, one of whom pumps the water, the second "feeds" the clouds and the third sends the rain.

The Malayan natives call it by the same name that they do the banded water cobra, only that they add "boba," meaning double headed, the equivalent in English being "the double headed water snake."

The Turkish children are told that if they can touch the rainbow they will at once have silver heads, eyes of ruby and teeth of gold. In Greece they say that the person so unfortunate as to stumble over the end of the rainbow will have his or her sex changed instantly.

The One Man Right.

Copernicus was at one time alone in his belief that the earth and planets revolved round the sun. Galilei was right when he asserted that the moon revolves round the earth, and so was Columbus when he asserted the possibility of sailing round the world. But in all these cases it is possible that others, unknown to fame, may have shared their beliefs.

There are two instances in which one man was absolutely right and, so far as we know, all the rest of mankind wrong. One was that of Newton, the discoverer of the principle of universal gravitation, and the other was that of John Harvey, who was absolutely alone in his conviction that the blood circulates through the veins and arteries of living animals. In this instance so universal was the disbelief that his fellow doctors nicknamed him "the quack," or "circulator," and the word survives to this day as the name of one who makes a profession of medical knowledge which he does not possess.

BATTLE WITH LADRONES

Nineteen Killed and Many Wounded in Fight Near Manila.

Manila, March 3.—A detachment of scouts, under the command of Lieutenant Nickerson, attacked and defeated a body of ladrones near the village of Mariquina, seven miles from Manila Sunday. Lieutenant Nickerson attacked before daylight. After an hour's fighting the ladrones were scattered and nineteen killed and many wounded. There were no casualties on the side of the scouts.

The constabulary last Wednesday surprised and captured the stronghold of the ladrones in the mountains of Albey, Luzon, where a force of ladrones attacked a small detachment of constabulary on February 20. The constabulary on Wednesday met with some resistance from the ladrones, who were defeated with a loss of 10 killed and four captured. The ladrones' stronghold and supplies were burned.

Brigadier-General Sumner, commanding the department of Mindanao, telegraphs that he expects trouble along the military road north of Lake Lanao. He says that the datos of the sultan of Mindanao are friendly and anxious for peace, but are unable to control sections of their unruly followers. General Sumner has warned the soldiers to avoid any conflict and to carefully guard against surprises.

DENIAL FROM MITCHELL

Not Interested In Scheme Against Employers of Non-Union Men.

Springfield, Ill., Feb. 28.—President John Mitchell, of the United Mine Workers of America, denies the statement made several days ago that he is leader of a party of union organizers to drive out of business employers of non-union men. It is reported that in Chicago and other Illinois towns a protest has been entered against awarding public contracts to companies using coal mined by non-union men in Maryland and West Virginia. In discussing this point, President Mitchell said that there was not a word of truth in the statement that he is interested in such a scheme.

Mr. Mitchell is deeply interested in the outcome of the meeting of scale committees of the miners and operators. As yet no agreement has been reached in the northern field, where the hottest fight is waged by the operators.

WHEN STARCH WAS NEW.

It Used to Be Made in Colors So as to Tint the Fabric.

"A package of starch?" asked the intelligent and learned grocer, and as he wrapped the package up he talked.

"Starch originated," he said, "in Flanders. It was introduced into England, with the big ruff, in the time of Queen Elizabeth. It was like our starch of today, except that it was made in colors—red, yellow, green, blue. The effect of this was to tint delicately the white linen to which the starch might be applied.

"Before Queen Elizabeth's time ruffles and ruffs were made of fine holland, which required no stiffening. Then the ruffs of cambric came, and these must of necessity be starched."

The grocer, consulting his memorandum book, resumed:

"It is recorded that 'when the queen had ruffs made of lawn and cambric for her own princely wearing there was none in England could tell how to starch them; but the queen made special means for some women that could starch, and Mrs. Guilham, wife of the royal coachman, was the first starcher.'

"In 1564 a Flanders woman, Frau Van der Plasse, came to London and established there a school for the teaching of starching. The school succeeded. The Flanders frau got rich. She charged £5 a lesson and an extra 20 shillings for a recipe for the making of starch out of wheat flour, bran and roots.

"Yellow was the most fashionable color in starch among the nobility. The Puritans used blue starch, though at first they had been against the stuff altogether, dubbing it 'a certaine kinde of liquide matter which they call starch, wherein the devil hath willed them to wash and dive their ruffes, which, when they be dry, will then stand stiffe and inflexible about their necks.'

"Starch is made from wheat, corn and potatoes, and starving men have often subsisted on it, finding it nourishing, though not tasty."—London Graphic.

DRESDEN CHINA.

First Offered For Sale at the Fair of Leipsic In 1721.

Dresden china began its reign at the fair of Leipsic, 1721, where it was offered for public sale for the first time. It has had three periods—King's, Marcoline and modern—and for all around use it continues to be the most popular ware of this day.

The factory marks traced on the bottom of each piece vary according to the period—the oldest (King's) being the monogram A. R. and the wand of Æsculapius. The familiar crossed swords, with the dot or circle between the handles, were first used in 1721, and the star took the place of the dot in the Marcoline period. The modern mark is the simple crossed swords, sometimes accompanied by letters and numbers.

Although the methods of work are still jealously guarded in all factories, the essentials are an open secret, and the following rough outline may satisfy the lazily curious: The ingredients of porcelain are kaolin feldspar, sand and selenite. These are ground fine and mixed in limewater. The paste is then molded into forms and fired in an oven of moderate heat. When taken out, it is in an opaque state and is then dipped in the glaze, which is feldspar ground fine, with a little alkali. It is now subjected to a firing of great heat, which results in the beautiful polished surface so familiar the world over.

This second firing is attended with risk, for if the piece is allowed to remain beyond the exact proper moment the whole melts together and is ruined.

How a Glass Eye Acts.

A glass eye has never so free a range of movement as the real one, and when the owner turns his eyes strongly in any direction the glass eye lags behind the other, so producing a squint. Then the pupil of the glass eye is of course of a fixed size, while the natural pupil dilates and contracts not only with varying amounts of light, but with varying emotions. Then again the white of the eye varies in tint greatly from day to day, being slightly bloodshot during headaches and yellow during bilious attacks. The differences in color between the two eyes caused by these changes are even more easily noticed than the differences in the pupils.

The Camel's Bite.

The camel alone of all ruminants has incisor teeth in the upper jaw, which, with the peculiar structure of his other teeth, make his bite, the animal's first and main defense, most formidable. The skeleton of the camel is full of proofs of design. Notice, for example, the arched backbone, constructed in such a way as to sustain the greatest weight in proportion to the span of the supports. A strong camel can bear a thousand pounds weight, although the usual load in Yemen is not more than 600 pounds.

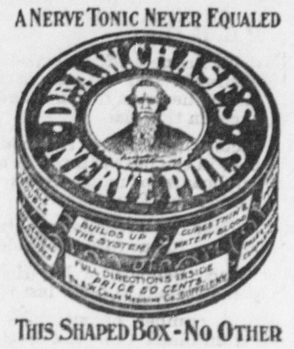
DR. A. W. Chase Nerve Pills

A NERVE TONIC NEVER EQUALED



THIS SHAPED BOX - NO OTHER

Mrs William Spencer of No. 105 Granger St., Syracuse, N. Y., says: I was always nervous, but of late years I could not sleep, was intensely nervous, ringing sounds in the ears and sharp noises in my head at night My strength was away down and I was very dizzy and had to catch hold of something until it passed off This condition certainly needed attention as it was growing steadily worse. Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Pill's were called to my attention and I got a box. The results were splendid—the nerves became quiet—the noises and ringing in the head, together with the dizzy spells, disappeared completely and I began to sleep well again. The general strength came back and as a result I feel very well every way again. I am only too pleased to be able to say this."

Mrs. Randolph Knutti of No 59 Penn St., Salem, Ohio, says: "Day times I was always nervous—children's noises and little things upset and worried me. As a consequence I felt depressed and debilitated I was told of Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Pills and got some and they acted finely. They made my nerves steady and strong and gave a splendid feeling of general strength and vigor. I don't worry or bother now about small things any more, and am very grateful for the change. As a nerve and general tonic I consider the medicine has no equal."

BIG STRIKE CALLED!

Ordered by International Association of Bridge and Structural Iron Workers.

MANY WORKMEN ARE INVOLVED

It is Against the American Bridge Company Which Has Large Construction Contracts.

SAID TO BE A SYMPATHY STRIKE

PHILADEPHIA, March 7.—A general strike against the American Bridge company has been called by the executive board of the International Association of Bridge and Structural Iron Workers.

This general order includes all construction work in the hands of the company throughout the United States and Canada and involves thousands of men in all sections.

When the order was received by Housesmiths and Bridgemen's Union No. 13, of this city, strikes were called on all operations where American Bridge company iron was used in construction, although the erecting contracts were in the hands of general contractors, who purchased the iron from the American Bridge company. Frank Buchanan, general president of the International Union, and another member of the executive board, came to this city Thursday night. As a result of a conference between representatives of several contractors and the business agents of the local union the men were ordered back to work yesterday on operations in this city not being erected by the American Bridge company.

The American Bridge company is said to have large construction contracts at many points. It is stated here that in New York 1,500 men are idle, while Pittsburg, Albany, Buffalo and St. Louis are said to be seriously affected.

The Union has taken steps to prevent if possible, the sub-letting of construction contracts. An officer of the Union said yesterday;

"In New York the company locked out the hoisting engineers' union. That action forced between 400 and 500 of our men to idleness. It was, therefore, thought that if the fight between us was to be forced by the men it might as well come now. The New York union demanded $4 50 per day after May I and that is below the scale demanded by the Bricklayers' union.

Other causes for the strike are said to be the effort of the American Bridge company to reduce the number of gangs of riveters who operate pneumatic hammers and the employment of laborers on work which the bridgemen claim they should perform.

NEW YORK, March 7.—An official of the American Bridge company said yesterday:

"This strike has been called without our receiving any prior notice of any trouble. So far as we know the strike is in sympathy with the hoisting engineers and reports from our foremen throughout the country show that everything is tied up everywhere in the country. We have always lived up to our engagements with the men in regard to the employment of union men, but the unions have failed to supply us with union men. The question for us to decide now is whether to employ non-union men or stop work.

"The organization of the iron manufacturers does not contemplate any action against the interests of the men. It does not intend to cut wages or do anything unless driven to some action by the men themselves."

Wandered in the Woods and Badly Frozen.

A few days ago an Austrian who had just arrived from the old country got off a train at Sabula and unable to make any one understand him he wandered in the woods and fields for four days. A Hebrew merchant at Sabula was informed of the Austrian's condition and hunted him up. He found that they both spoke the same language and then his pitiable condition was learned. Portions of his body were badly frozen and he was almost starved. He wore congress shoes and it was necessary to cut them from his feet. His feet were terribly frozen and were black from the effects, while his hands and face also bore evidence of the severe weather to which he was exposed. It is thought his feet will have to amputated.

From the fifty per cent. of the graduating class having the highest average grades in all subjects at the beginning of the second semester, Senior year, the five having the highest grades in essays and rhetoricals are assigned commencement parts by the faculty. Rural Delivery for Buffalo Run.

Last week route agent Shoenberger of the U. S. postoffice department was in town looking over the proposed route for rural free delivery through Buffalo Run valley. In company with Edward Wasson, of Briarly, who has been largely instrumental in accomplishing the work, he drove over the roads that will be covered and decided to report in favor of establishing the service.

Mr. Shoenberger said that it will be probably May 1st before it is in operation. The route startes from Bellefonte goes through Coleville and out along the mountain road to Mal Roan's opposite Fillmore, thence between the mountains past Hoover's, Reese's and Wise's to the road leading down to Green's. Thence back to Bellefonte on the main valley road.

He is going over the proposed route for Pleasant Gap and Stormstown this week. If the former one is established it will be arranged so as to serve the people along what is known as the back road up Buffalo Run; the one running past Marshall's, Seibert's, Clarks and other people who would not be reached by the route that will serve the mountain and main valley roads.

March a Stormy Month.

The Saturday Harrisburg Patriot said The records of the weather bureau at this city show that March can not be looked forward to as a pleasant time. The average number of clear days eight, cloudy days fourteen and nine partly cloudy days. This indicates that umbrellas and rubber shoes should be kept handy. The temperature varies a great deal, as the mercury rose to 76 degrees on March 19, 1898, and it went down to 5 degrees on March 18 1900, which is much in the nature of a trip from the tropics to the pole, and does not recall recollections of Los Angeles California, where the mercury only varies ten degrees in a year. The average rainfall for the month is 3,17 inches, and the heaviest fall was 4.81 inches in 1892 and the least 1.30 inches in 1894.

KITCHEN HELPS.

A little salt sprinkled on a smoky fire will clear it.

Saucepans must be dried as well as washed before they are put away.

A cork dipped in fine coal ashes is excellent for scouring kitchen knives and utensils.

To remove the smell of onions from a saucepan fill it with water and drop into it a redhot cinder.

In cleaning oilcloths on the kitchen washstand a cloth dipped in kerosene cleans more quickly and the cloth looks fresher and cleaner than when water is used.

A suggestion for those hampered by limited pot closet room is to place a few screw hooks in the bottom of the shelves, on which to hang kettles and saucepans.

Much care should be taken to prevent verdigris from appearing on kitchen utensils. When it does, the juice of a lemon mixed with a teaspoonful of salt will soon remove it.

A great deal of time will be saved by placing a little hot water in a utensil in which sticky food has been cooked, covering closely and placing on the stove. The steam loosens the food so that it can be washed off readily.

Staining Floors.

A practical person suggests that if housewives care to stain their own floors they should begin by washing them thoroughly; then fill in all the cracks with putty and scrape off any scraps of paint which can be loosened with a little turpentine. A light hardwood stain can be produced by the mixing of a pint of boiled oil, a pint of turpentine, a tablespoonful of burnt sienna and two tablespoonfuls of chrome yellow. This stain is used for pine and similar woods. To make a darker stain add a tablespoonful of burnt sienna and the same amount of burnt umber. Walnut stain contains two tablespoonfuls of burnt umber, three tablespoonfuls of chrome yellow, half a tablespoonful of lampblack, a pint of turpentine and a pint of boiled oil. Apply with a brush. The brush should always be worked with the grain of the wood. The room should be closed until the stain is dry. When dry, rub the floor evenly with a small strip of carpet bound about a brush. When a polish has been raised, lay on the varnish or wax. Varnish smoothly and carefully. Watch the grain carefully and let the brush fall in with it.

The Hot Sand Bag.

Many people appreciate the value of a hot water bag to relieve pain or improve the circulation. It is said that a hot sand bag is still better for this purpose. A physician gives the following directions: "Get some clean, fine sand and dry it thoroughly in a kettle on the stove. Make a bag about eight inches square of flannel, fill it with the dry sand, sew the opening carefully together and cover the bag with cotton or linen cloth. This will prevent the sand from sifting out and also enable you to heat the bag quickly by placing it in the oven or on the top of the stove. After once using this you will never again attempt to warm the feet or hands of a sick person with a bottle or a brick. The sand holds the heat for a long time, and the bag can be tucked up to the back without hurting the invalid."—Health Culture.

No Place Like Home.

The home should be the uppermost thought in a woman's mind, not only how to keep it, but how to improve it and to keep a healthy interest in it. This is a natural forward movement.

Married life does not end a vital interest in securing, furnishing and maintaining a home. It should be but the beginning of effort to make and maintain the home perfect, however good the beginning. To take care of one's possession means mental effort as well as physical—means system and order and eternal vigilance. If this care is not given or is relaxed in the slightest, disorder and even destruction come quickly. A woman's interest in her home means a bit of political economy that has no parallel.

A Handy Closet.

A corner closet in either the living room or the bathroom of a house, in which can be found a supply of cleaning fluids and materials for household use in repairing articles at short notice, will be such a source of comfort that it is well worth the trouble and slight expense involved. Ammonia and wood alcohol and gasoline for the liquids and French chalk, cornmeal and pipeclay for dry cleaning are absolute necessities. Each household has special things that it invariably uses for cleansing and renovating and doubtless one is as good as another, but the important thing is to have them in an accessible place and where they can be had at a moment's notice.

GULF STREAM MARKS.

The Course of the Flow Through the Ocean Plainly Indicated.

The color of the stream is perceptibly deeper blue than that of the neighboring sea, this blueness forming one of the standard references of the nautical novelists. The depth of color is due to the high percentage of salt contained as compared with the cold green water of higher latitudes, observation having shown that the more salt held in solution by sea water the more intensely blue is its color. Thus even in extratropical latitudes we sometimes observe water of a beautiful blue color, as for instance, in the Mediterranean and in other nearly landlocked basins, where the influx of fresher water, being more or less impeded, the percentage of salt contained is raised by evaporation above the average, says the National Geographic Magazine.

Another important fact in connection with the stream is its almost tropical temperature, due to the fact that its high velocity enables it to reach the middle latitudes with very little loss of heat. Upon entering its limits the temperature of the sea water frequently shows a rise of ten degrees and even fifteen degrees. It was this fact that gave to the stream in the later years of the eighteenth century and the earlier years of the nineteenth an importance in the minds of navigators that it no longer possesses. In those days the chronometer, invented by Harrison in 1765, was still an experiment. Instruments were crude and nautical tables often at fault.

The result was that the determination of the longitude was largely a matter of guesswork, a vessel after a voyage from the channel to America often being out of her reckoning by degrees instead of by minutes. The idea, first suggested by Benjamin Franklin, that the master of a vessel, by observing the temperature of the surface water, could tell the moment of his entry into the gulf stream and could hence fix his position to within a few miles was hailed with delight.

The method was published in 1790 by Jonathan Williams in a work lengthily entitled "Thermometrical Navigation: Being a series of experiments and observations tending to prove that by ascertaining the relative heat of the sea water from time to time the passage of a ship through the gulf stream and from deep water into soundings may be discovered in time to avoid danger." In this work he makes a patriotic comparison of the gulf stream to a streak of red, white and blue, painted upon the surface of the sea for the guidance of American navigators.

Don't Be a Second Class Man.

You can hardly imagine a boy saying: "I am going to be a second class man. I don't want to be first class and get the good jobs, the high pay. Second class jobs are good enough for me." Such a boy would be regarded as lacking in good sense if not in sanity. You can get to be a second class man, however, by not trying to be a first class one. Thousands do that all the time, so that second class men are a drug on the market, remarks Success.

Second class things are only wanted when first class can't be had. You wear first class clothes if you can pay for them, eat first class butter, first class meat and first class bread, or, if you don't, you wish you could. Second class men are no more wanted than any other second class commodity. They are taken and used when the better article is scarce or is too high priced for the occasion. For work that really amounts to anything first class men are wanted.

The Home of England's Wealth.

The Bank of England generally contains sufficient gold in sixteen pound bars to make 20,000,000 sovereigns. The bank, which stands in three parishes, covers three acres of ground, and, as the current price of land in the vicinity works out at £1,000,000 an acre, it is easy to form an idea of the money value of England's wealth. The ratable value is about £1,000 a week. The bank employs about 1,000 people, pays a quarter of a million a year in wages and £35,000 a year in pensions. There are £25,000,000 worth of notes in circulation which have been handed over the bank's counter.—London Globe.

—We wonder whether the Street Committee is aware of the fact that the arc light at the corner of Linn and Spring streets, has not been in operation for the past ten days? For one or two evenings when it was dark as Egypt, there was no light at that place, where so many people pass. Since then there is an incandescent lamp hooked on to the wire, which is supposed to do the work of the arc-and for which, no doubt, full price will be charged.

An Open Letter to Burgess Walker.

MR BURGESS :—

You will doubtless remember the crusade made by the DAILY NEWS against the slot machines which were a prevailing vice in our community a few months ago. The effect of the agitation was to close them up for a while, but we have been informed that of late, at least two of them are in operation.

This fact, we are led to believe, is known to your two policemen and to the County Detective. The persons operating these wheels know they are doing so in direct violation of law, and can only continue by the grace of those whose duty it is, to suppress crime, and are paid by our citizens to guard and protect the morals of our town. These officials are not employed simply to arrest and convey to the lock-up some poor degraded wretch who unfortunately tarried too long over his wine, and at the same time close their eyes to more flagrant evils.

If either of your policemen have knowledge of a slot machine being located in any room in town (whether in operation or not) it is their duty to report the fact to you. They have then performed that which is required of them, and the responsibility is upon your shoulders. We do not intend to dictate what your policy shall be, in relation to dealing with offenders of the law, but we have reason to believe that when your attention is called to any thing, which in your judgment requires official action, you will not hesitate to act.

Before closing will say, that if your policemen refuse to furnish information in regard to the slot machines in operation at present, we will furnish sufficient knowledge to warrant you to confiscate the machines and arrest the offenders.

Two Livery Changes.

The first of April will find liveryman James Toner located at the old Bush house stables. Since going into business for himself he has been located on Water street, near the Big Spring, and the change has been made necessary because of the cramped quarters in which he finds himself with a rapidly growing business.

George Beezer expects to become an owner in a few days. He has made enough out of the fine outfits he has for hire to purchase the large Potter stable he is now occupying on Water street and just as soon as the ownership becomes vested in him he intends beginning extensive remodeling. He will add another story to the building, so that the horses can be kept upstairs; leaving the entire first floor for carriages.
